EUROPEAN COUNTRIESMOBILIZATION OF FIVE ARMY CORPS OF RESERVISTS MEANS TROUBLE IS TO BE EXPECTED.

PEACE STILL HOPED FOR

Meanwhile Fighting in and Around
Constantinople Continues—Turks
Claim Great Reserve Forces
As Does Bulgaria.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Eng., Nov. 23.—The calling of the reservists of five German army corps to join their colors immediately and the issuance of a strict censorship of all telegraph and telephone messages from Austria-Hungary continued military activities on the Russian and Austrian boundary line.

Great unrest throughout the continent of Europe other than the Balkan states and European Turkey are among the significant indications to-day that a conflict among the powers is not improbable despite the strenuous efforts being made in diplomatic circles to avert a war which might change the map of Europe from Moscow to the Atlantic.

Are Verified. These reports, none of which officially have been verified, are in distinct disagreement with the statement issued last night by Premier Asquith to the effect that harmony prevails among the powers and that negotiations for the settlement of the Balkan controversy are proceeding satisfactorily.

In the point of fact official denials quickly follow each story of the calling of reservists by the different armies, but these denials, however vehement, fail utterly to dissipate the general anxiety concerning the situation.

Have Reserves. The Turkish government points out, anapropos of the pending peace negotiations that it still has half a million seasoned and well drilled soldiers from which to draw for the defenses in front of Constantinople while the Bulgarians have none.

On the other hand the allied Balkan nations report that they now are in a position to march 150,000 troops who have been otherwise engaged to swell the great army besieging the Turks at Thessalonika.

Cholera Ravages. In the meanwhile the awful ravages of cholera in European Turkey continue with little abatement. While efforts to hide the sick and to bury the thousands of dead are being made, the spread of the dread disease continues to an alarming degree. More deadly than the solid shot and shrapnel of the allies, cholera is claiming its victims in untold thousands.

Nothing had developed within the past 12 hours to indicate whether the Turks will consider the proposed modifications offered by the Balkan allies adequate to induce them to agree to an armistice preparatory to a definite peace.

Have Waived Demand. The Balkan allies are understood to have waived the demand for the evacuation of the Turks of the lines of the Tchaudja, are willing that the garrison of Adrianople should march out with the honors of war. They insist, however, on the surrender of the fortress of Adrianople itself. The porte on the other hand demands that Adrianople remain invested, pending the armistice as the French fortress of Belfort did during the Franco-German armistice in 1871.

Are Satisfied. Berlin, Nov. 23.—German official circles expressed themselves as undisturbed by the sinister rumors in regard to the international situation emanating from Vienna. It was declared this morning that the prospects of a peaceful settlement of the Austro-Serbian conflict distinctly improved.

From Bohemia. Prague, Bohemia, Nov. 23.—The reservists of five German army corps numbering 130,000 men have been ordered to rejoin their regiments according to the Czech Slav.

Decrease in Deaths. Constantinople, Nov. 23.—The Turkish government reports a great decrease in the number of deaths from cholera during the past few days, but this is not widely credited among foreign residents in the capital. Some attempt is being made to house the soldiers suffering from the disease now. Wooden huts are being erected at the San Stefano cholera camp on the open plains which a few days ago was strewn with groups of dead and dying. Most of the bodies of the victims have been carried away.

Camp Filled With Dead. The new camp, however, is filled with dead, dying and suspects. A trail load of stricken soldiers numbing from 1,000 to 2,000 arrived at camp today and the belief is expressed that such trainloads are brought there daily. It is reported many of the troops die in the trenches along the Tchaudja lines. Little use is being made of the foreign members of the Red Crescent society. They are politely received by the authorities but are not given any duty to perform.

Improved Hospitals. Some of the foreign doctors have improved hospitals and themselves go out and bring in the wounded men from the front. Besides the Mohammedan prejudice against the foreigners, the Turkish authorities are anxious to hide from them as far as possible the disorganization in the Turkish service and the indifference of those in power to the existence of the horrors caused in the army by disease and lack of provisions.

Committed Suicide? Belgrade, Nov. 23.—The body of General Fethi Pasha, former Turkish minister at Belgrade, and who commanded the 6th Turkish army corps at Monastir, was found by the Servians among the corpses on the battlefield. It is probable that he committed suicide.

Made Sortie. Sofia, Nov. 23.—The besieged garrison of Adrianople attempted a general sortie yesterday, according to dispatches received here. The Turkish troops, however, were thrown back into the fortress after a battle which lasted throughout the afternoon. They lost heavily.

Strict Censorship. London, Nov. 23.—A news agency dispatch from Vienna says a censorship has been established on all telegraphic and telephone communications from Austria-Hungary to foreign countries since early this morning.

Declares Independence. Vienna, Nov. 23.—The independence of Albania has been proclaimed at Durazzo by Ismail Kemal Bey, the leader of the Albanians, according to a report published in the Allegemeine Zeitung today.

DR. SHERMAN MAKES

Superintendent of Northern Asylum
Brands Dr. Ladova's Charges
As "Fabrications."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Oshkosh, Nov. 23.—In reply to a request for a statement regarding the charges made by Dr. Rosalie M. Ladova against the management of the Northern Hospital for the Insane, Dr. Adin Sherman, superintendent of the institution, said today:

"I do not propose to enter into a newspaper discussion and will make my defense in the proper way and the proper time. The statements of Dr. Ladova are a tissue of fabrications and exaggerations and the motive must be apparent to any intelligent person. The publicity given has done the institution and me a great injury."

Dr. Sherman declined to state what action, if any, he would take in the matter.

ZOLLINGER MURDER
CASE GIVEN JURY

Judge Evans Cautions Jury to Disregard "Unwritten Law" in Bringing in a Verdict.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Columbus, O., Nov. 23.—After a trial lasting two weeks the case of Cecelia Farley, the pretty stenographer charged with the murder of Alvin E. Zollinger, an advertising solicitor, was given to the jury at criminal court at 12:04 p. m. today. In charging the jury Judge Markus C. Evans, who heard the case, instructed the jurors to disregard the "unwritten law" in bringing in a verdict.

Prosecuting Attorney Edward C. Turner finished his plea for conviction after asking the jurors not to let the fact that the defendant is a pretty woman warp their judgment. "Don't put a premium on murder," he continued. "If we can tell our fallen women that when they get tried of one lover then can shoot him and obtain another, things have come to a sad state." The prosecutor charged that Miss Farley has not told the truth in testifying on the witness stand. He declared that she had pulled the wool over the eyes of the jury in a slander suit and asked the jurors not to let it happen in the present case. Prosecutor Turner referred to Miss Farley as a "tigress."

At 4:30 p. m. Farley was acquitted.

The woman was charged with having poisoned her son with a compound of arsenic and barium.

ESCAPED MAD MAN IS KILLED BY A POSSE

Insane Man Who Had Wounded Two
At a Minnesota Village Pursued by Mob and Shot.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 23.—Henry Polker, aged 26, an escaped madman was shot and killed by a posse last night after he had shot and wounded Matthew R. Lenzen, aged 36, and Leonard Lenzen, Jr., aged 10, at Hammel, a village 15 miles south of here.

Polker who escaped from the hospital for insane at Rochester, rode to the home of Leonard Lenzen and firing through a window shot the two youths who were seated with the family group about the fire. He then proceeded to a barn on his father's farm. Sheriff Langum and a posse found him there and after the exchange of a number of shots Polker was killed. None of the posse was injured.

BELOIT POSTMASTER
MADE UNSUCCESSFUL
SUICIDAL ATTEMPT

D. B. Worthington, Owner of Beloit
Daily News, Shot Himself in Head in Office in Postoffice
Last Night.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Beloit, Nov. 23.—During a fit of despondency about midnight Postmaster D. B. Worthington, who for a dozen years has been prominent in political circles in southern Wisconsin, made an unsuccessful attempt to commit suicide by shooting. The wound inflicted was only a slight one in the scalp and his rapid recovery is expected.

Mr. Worthington was re-appointed postmaster for the second term in February, 1911, thus leaving still more than two years to serve. Previous to the appointment to office he had been active in newspaper fields, but since his appointment he has not taken part in that line of work. Mrs. Worthington and her two sons left Thursday for California to spend the winter and it is thought their departure had something to do with the shooting.

Mr. Worthington was founder and for a number of years editor of the Beloit Daily News, but since his appointment as postmaster, has relinquished his editorial duties, although retaining the ownership of the paper. He is a man of an extremely nervous disposition, and worries over family troubles are said to have brought on the fit of despondency.

The attempt to end his life was committed in his office in the postoffice last night. He had been working in his office during the evening, writing letters, when the night clerk heard the shot, and investigating found Mr. Worthington on the floor. Just previous to the shooting, Mr. Worthington telephoned to the Elks' club and notified Dr. McCabe to come to the postoffice as there would be "something doing" when he got there. The physician arrived shortly after the shooting.

FRENCH BIRTH RATE
STILL ON DECLINE

Dire Results Predicts For French Nation as Result of Increasing Sterility.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, Nov. 23.—The birth rate of France was lower by more than 100,000 in 1911 than in 1901. Louis Klotz, minister of finance announcing this fact to the commission on depopulation at its first session today said: "Military inferiority, economic inferiority and the diminution of the power of France in the world sooner or later will be the inevitable consequences of the sterility of our nation." The number of births last year according to M. Klotz was only 742,114 in the whole of France against 557,274 a decade ago. In 1907 and 1911 he said the deaths actually exceeded the births. The births exceeded the deaths in 1910 in Germany by 573,113; in Austria-Hungary by 573,720; in Great Britain by 413,779; and in Italy by 161,771 but in France by only 71,413.

LAWYER AS LEADER IS LOSING GROUND

No Longer Holds Foremost Position
In American Public According to Dr. McCarthy.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 23.—The day of the lawyer as a leader in American public life has passed; the day for the political scientist and economist is dawning, is the opinion of Dr. Charles McCarthy, chief of the Wisconsin legislative reference library. He will outline his ideas in a letter to the members of the political science council. According to his plan, political science graduates of universities will be put in contact with the actual problems of government to a much greater extent than now. Government of the future will demand more experts. He would train students in governmental activities.

"If the professors of political science now connected with the political science association will agree to this," he said today, "I do not think it will be hard to get the regents or trustees of presidents of the different colleges to agree. A central office should be maintained, and possibly a director or secretary. The work of all young men in this field could be kept on cards in the central office, and if they were found especially useful they could be recommended for actual work in administration of the state. Thus we would have men who have theoretical knowledge as well as practical experience. I would suggest calling this central office the college of public servants of the American Political Science Association."

Dr. McCarthy said the necessity for this work will appeal to everybody.

"People are demanding economists," he asserted. "That is why Lawyer Taft and his cabinet of lawyers who view everything from a legal aspect have been displaced by Political Economist Wilson."

"Our political science departments," he continued, "are different from our agricultural departments in just this point—the agricultural professor to understand the diseases of the hog cuts up the hog. He has an experiment station. Our political scientists have too long had no experiment station. If we ever get to turning out this type of young men, it will not be long before political science will receive a new impetus in America."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Beloit, Nov. 23.—Edward Fulton, aged 23, and Mrs. Edna Gunderson, 35, are both at the Emergency hospital today suffering from wounds inflicted by Fulton last night during a jealous quarrel. Both will recover. Fulton, according to the police, had been living with the Gunderson woman during the past few months and they were engaged to be married. Yesterday he accused the woman of having been untrue to him and took his belongings away from her home. Later she sent word she wanted to see him. He went to the house last night and found her in bed. A quarrel followed at the climax of which Fulton is alleged to have drawn his revolver and fired twice at her. The first bullet penetrated her left arm, fracturing it at the elbow, and the second merely grazed her body. He then turned the gun on himself, the shot entering his neck. Fulton is under guard at the hospital and will be arrested as soon as he leaves the institution. Fulton was formerly a baseball player.

GRANTS INJUNCTION AGAINST PROPOSED INCREASE OF RATE

Judge Robert Shirley of Sangamon Circuit Court Grants Perpetual Injunction to Restrain Head Camp.

Janesville Woodmen will be interested in the following dispatches concerning the action of courts on the proposed rate increases and the appeal from their decision.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 23.—Holding the new rates adopted by the head camp of the Modern Woodmen at the meeting in Chicago in January, 1912, to be burdensome to members of the fraternal society and excessive and unnecessary, Judge Robert Shirley of the Sangamon Circuit Court Friday morning granted a perpetual injunction restraining the head camp from putting the rates into effect and also restraining the officers from declaring delinquent any member refusing to pay the new rates.

The injunction is sweeping, as the organization is an Illinois corporation, and is effective all over the United States and Canada.

The petition for an injunction was filed by four members of the organization, all of this city, last August. The hearing which continued for two weeks, started the first week of September.

Head Clerk is Confident.

Rock Island, Ill., Nov. 23.—C. W. Hawes, head clerk of the Modern Woodmen, order, after receiving the ruling of Judge Shirley, said:

"We are not at all in doubt as to the final outcome of these rate suits, and, since even Judge Shirley has held that the head camp in making these changes proceeded legally, the higher courts in the state at least will now have opportunity to pass exclusively on the point of whether the new rates as adopted were necessary to enable the society to meet its present assumed obligations. On that point, the evidence is overwhelmingly one way, and we are sure there will be a verdict for the society in the end."

Talbot Predicts Appeal.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 23.—Head Counsel A. R. Talbot this afternoon declared that the head officers of the Modern Woodmen of America would take steps immediately to appeal Judge Shirley's decision to the Appellate Court of Illinois in an effort to have the injunction suspended.

Meanwhile, Mr. Talbot said, no effort would be made on the part of the head officers to put the new rates of the society into effect. They were to have become effective January 1.

Bare Levy For Fight.

St. Paul, Nov. 23.—The Minnesota Supreme Court dealt a blow to the "insurgent" forces of the Modern Woodmen of America in a decision handed down today in which it holds that camps of the lodge, not incorporated, cannot by mandamus compel their officers to levy assessments or issue warrants on the funds of the camps to fight the increase in rates ordered by the head camp.

HELD LAST SERVICES FOR ORMOND DUTTON

Remains Laid to Rest in Mt. Pleasant Cemetery Yesterday Afternoon—Was Civil War Veteran.

The funeral services of the late Ormond N. Dutton, who passed away at 1:15 a. m. of November 22, was held from the home 5 miles north of the city Friday afternoon.

Elder W. A. McDowell of Bristol, Ill., of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ officiating. Mrs. Biglow Mrs. Sweetley and Mrs. Axtell of Evansville, sang three hymns.

The pall bearers were Messrs H. D. Stevens of Madison, August Gratz of Roscoe, Ill., C. C. Hoague and Joseph Gibbs of Porter, E. A. Townsend and Henry Sperry of Beloit. Burial was made in Mt. Pleasant cemetery.

Mr. Dutton was born in Hartford, Windsor Co., Vermont, June 2, 1841. When 15-years of age he came to Janesville with his father, Noah Dutton now deceased. He lived in Janesville until the opening of the Civil War when he enlisted in the 22nd Wisconsin Regiment, Company E, serving under Captain Isaac Miles at the time when forced marching was ordered in pursuing John Morgan. The exposure from sleeping in army tents, often beneath three or four inches of ice and sleet, where there would be a cast of their forms frozen in the mud in the morning, brought on a terrible cold from which he has often said he would have died had not Captain Miles taken him into his own tent until he could be sent to a hospital. There he remained until he was pronounced incurable, and received his honorable discharge and sent home. This exposure resulted in chronic asthma with its accompanying disorders from which he suffered nearly 50 years.

He married Miss Ellen F. Burnham of Hebron, Jefferson Co., Wis., May 23, 1864, settling in the township of Janesville where his death occurred. Besides his wife he leaves five children, Miss Julia M. Dutton of Janesville, Miss Hattie S. Roberts of West Allis, Wis., Jasper O. Dutton of Evansville, Mrs. Ava Wildersmith of Fargo, North Dakota. One son, John B. Dutton died in 1893. One sister, Mrs. Joseph Simmons resides near Milton Junction and a half sister and brother, Mrs. Oscar Pease and William Dutton at Janesville.

Mr. Dutton was highly revered and respected by a host of friends. His passing will cause sincere sorrow. Many relatives and friends came to view for the last time the face of him whom they held in high esteem and affection.

Among those from away were: Mrs. West, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sperry, Mr. and Mrs. Archambault, Mrs. Baas of Beloit, Mr. and Mrs. August Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Farber of Roscoe, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kimball of Plano, Ill., Mrs. Charles Sperry and Mrs. Jensen of Evansville, Mrs. H. C. Hadley of Brooklyn and Mrs. H. D. Kimball of Madison.

CITY HAS ARTISTIC DRINKING FOUNTAIN

New One at Spring Brook and Milton Avenue Fountain Fine Examples of Designs in Concrete.

With the completion of the new drinking fountain at Spring Brook, Janesville is provided with two concrete watering places for man and beast that are not only highly serviceable but artistic and attractive. Both fountains were designed by City Engineer C. V. Korch and built under his direction and supervision. The one on Milton avenue was completed a year ago, and the one at the corner of McKay Boulevard and Eastern avenue less than two weeks ago. Each

PLEASANT BANQUET ENJOYED AT ORFORD

Annual Supper of Ladies Cemetery Association Held at Town Hall—Was Delightful Event.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Orfordville, Nov. 23.—The Ladies' Cemetery Association gave their annual supper at the town hall Friday evening. This event is the one affair of the year which calls forth attendance from far and near. Former residents of the village make it a point to come to the "cemetery supper" and many joyful reunions of old neighbors and friends take place in the hours given to the feast. The suppers are always delicious and beautiful and last night's was no exception. A program is usually presented in the middle of the evening, and the town's favorites offered the entertainment this time. Mrs. C. H. Boag's beautiful voice was at its best. Mrs. W. T. Green, with Mr. Sainsbury at the piano, surpassed herself. Mrs. Crum, and Mr. Sainsbury delighted their hearers with readings. A welcome addition was the sweet voice of Miss Gifford of Juda, who sang, accompanied by Mrs. Sainsbury on the violin and Mrs. Jones on the piano.

Financially the evening was also successful, the ladies taking in about seventy dollars.

Local News.

The Misses Mildred and Evelyn Dunn gave a pleasant evening party to a few of their friends Thursday. Miss Margaret Davis of Beloit, is the guest of Miss Ethel Compton.

The Rime building occupied by U. T. Hansen & being renovated with a new galvanized iron front, pressed in a pattern which will be painted to simulate brick. This will make a great improvement in the street.

Among the visitors from out of town in attendance at the "cemetery supper" last evening were Dr. Keichlev and wife, Mrs. Brown, Smith, Miss Davis of Beloit, Mrs. Lou Terry and Miss Bernstein of Brodhead, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smiley of Janesville, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Janman of Beloit, Mrs. Gifford and Miss Vera Gifford of Juda.

TUESDAY LAST DAY FOR APPLICATIONS

Foreigners Desiring Second Papers Have Only Short Time to Get Cases on February Calendar.

Tuesday, Nov. 26, is the last day for making applications for second citizenship papers at the office of the clerk of the circuit court at the court house. All cases filed on or before that day will come up at the February term of court when the naturalization examiner will conduct the inquiry. Owing to the new naturalization law which requires that all persons shall have their second papers, or be enrolled as full citizens, in order to vote after the present year, there has been a rush for applications for the next term. All persons who have not their second papers will not be allowed to vote at the spring election. Eighty-two applications have already been filed at the clerk's office and others will be received Monday and Tuesday.

WATERWORKS PURCHASE UNDER CONSIDERATION

Council Has Not Permitted Matter to Lapse But is Negotiating to Secure Transfer.

Contrary to the belief of some citizens, the council has not permitted the matter of purchasing the Janesville waterworks to lapse, but is now actively engaged in negotiating for a transfer of the plant and system in the most expeditious and direct manner. Mayor Fathers was in Madison one day this week consulting with the Railway Rate Commission concerning the matter, and significant developments are anticipated within a short time.

TO ORGANIZE STATE TO IMPROVE FARMING

Employment of Expert to Supervise Farming Methods Urged at Conference of Business Men.

Wisconsin bankers, educators, railroadmen and leaders in agricultural thought held a conference in Madison yesterday afternoon aiming at the organization of county agricultural improvement movements. It is proposed to place in each county an agricultural supervisor whose work shall be expert oversight of farming methods through personal work with the farmers on their own farm. This work has already been undertaken in three Wisconsin counties, notably Oneida, by the state agricultural college.

After Wisconsin Man.

Bert Ball, Chicago, secretary of the crop improvement committee of the Council Grain Exchanges, one of the principal speakers, said that Illinois is eager to secure the Oneida county farming supervisor. E. L. Luther, at a greatly increased salary, if Wisconsin would let him go. Dean H. L. Russell, said there was no chance of this happening.

The work of Prof. R. A. Moore is organizing the rural young people in county orders for improvement of grain breeds was liberally extolled by the Illinois visitor. There are 28 such county orders, and a dozen more will be organized the coming year.

Chairman of the committee on agricultural development and education, of the Wisconsin Bankers' association, presided.

A State Manager.

The Wisconsin plan of advancing the movement will probably be the appointment of a state manager, so called, to be appointed by agreement between the state agricultural college and the federal government, the salary to be shared alike, and the appointment later of county agents. It was explained that the movement was broader than a plan to aid bankers alone but had the improvement of agricultural and rural school conditions generally as its principal object.

A. D. Campbell, secretary of the Wisconsin Advancement association, ventured that a thousand million dollars will be added to the valuation of the state by the full development of the present undeveloped portions. He urged a larger state appropriation for the state board of immigration, which now is only $7,000 yearly.

Other Prominent Speakers.

The rural school problem in its relation to county development was presented by State Superintendent C. P. Cary, former State Superintendent L. D. Harvey of Menominee, Wis., and S. G. Lindholm, who has made an exhaustive investigation of the rural schools for the state board of public affairs. M. S. Dudgeon explained the influence of the free library movement on the farming communities. R. A. Campbell, secretary of the state board of public affairs, discussed the present conditions of the state's rural schools, and John S. Donald, president of the Wisconsin Country Life commission, extolled the financial benefits

CONTRACTORS HAVE FINISHED SEWER CONSTRUCTION HERE

Gray, Robinson & Company Put in Over Six Thousand Feet of Sewer—Work is Approved.

Gray, Robinson & Co., the Manitowoc contracting firm, has finished the sewer construction work in this city which it was under the contract to perform, and will soon load and ship its tools. Approximately six thousand feet of sewer was laid in Districts Nos. 3, 4, 5, 14, and 16. The amount of the bid was $4,504.06. Separate bids were received for the work in each district: that for No. 3 was $1,481.76; for No. 4, $573.56; for No. 5, $298.86; No. 14, $154.75; No. 16, $1,995.13. The Board of Public Works yesterday inspected and approved the sewer work. A small sum will be retained from the amount due the firm for rolling the trenches and replacing the cross-walks.

CORN GROWING CONTESTS INTEREST YOUNG PEOPLE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 23.—About 15,000 young people were entered in corn growing contests held in forty Wisconsin counties the past summer, according to state agricultural college authorities. Some of the awards will not be made until county agricultural associations and similar community organizations hold their winter meetings. Winners are given scholarships, with all expenses paid, in the agricultural college for one week during the winter course. Cash prizes generally are given by the local associations to winners of second and third honors. Last year the attendance in the boys' corn course showed an increase from 20 in 1910 to 56 in 1912, largely as the result of these scholarship offers. The direction of the contest plan is vested in Prof. R. A. Moore, agronomy department.

By reason of a peculiar birthmark near his left eye, that member always looks as if it had just stopped a fusillade of punches. Time and again fans at the ringside who have seen an opponent land a punch on the left side of Harry's head, and then caught a glimpse of the birthmark, have thought he was all in and yelled for the referee to stop the bout.

OUTLAW LEAGUE FOR THE MIDDLE WEST

"Tip" O'Neill.

President "Tip" O'Neill of the Western League denies that he has had anything to do with the formation of a new "outlaw" league in the middle west. He admits that discussion of the proposed league has been going on for several weeks and that the subject took form at a meeting of the Western league recently in Milwaukee.

Plans of the proposed league, it is said, included possible clubs in Chicago, Minneapolis, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Joseph and an eighth city yet to be named.

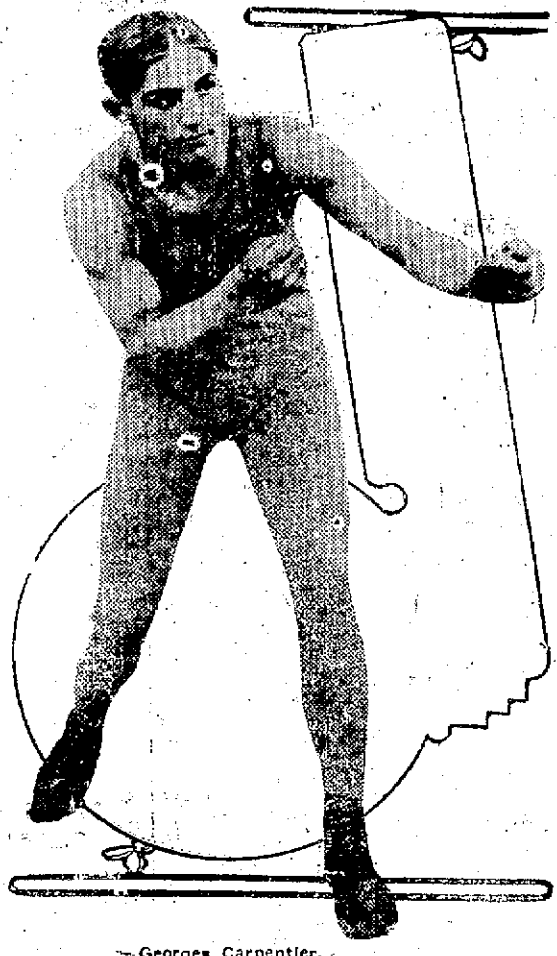

Philosopher's Tip. "I was riding in the park with the great Carlyle one morning when his wideawake blew off. A working man very civilly ran and picked it up. Instead of giving the man a pourboire, however meager, Carlyle took the returned hat with a bow, and said: 'Thank ye, my man; ye can just say ye've picked up the hat of Thomas Carlyle.'—That Fourth Generation," by Janet Ross.

"Bear Talk" Efficacious. "Bear talk" was always considered "good medicine" by the Indians. If a bear blocked their path, they addressed him politely, reminding him of their common brotherhood, praising his nobility and requesting him kindly to allow them an unobstructed passage. This, it is said, he frequently did, for, being by nature inoffensive, the soft accents did not disturb him, and so he would go on his way.

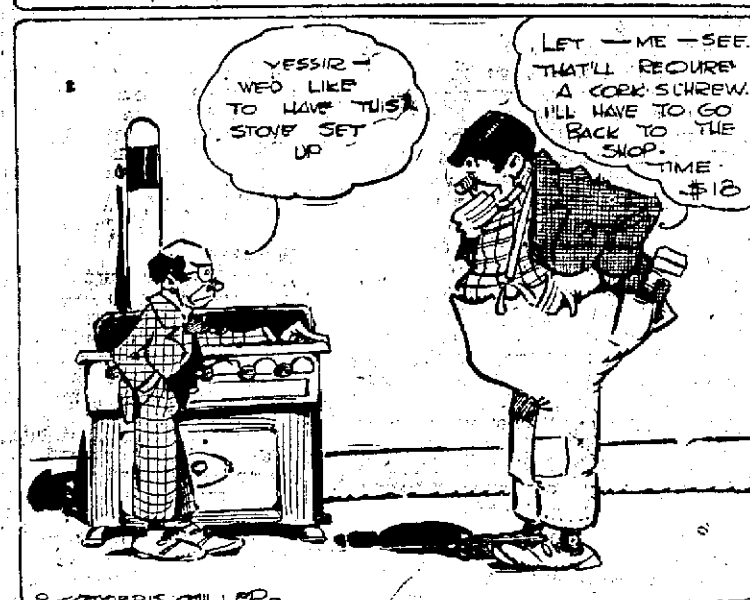

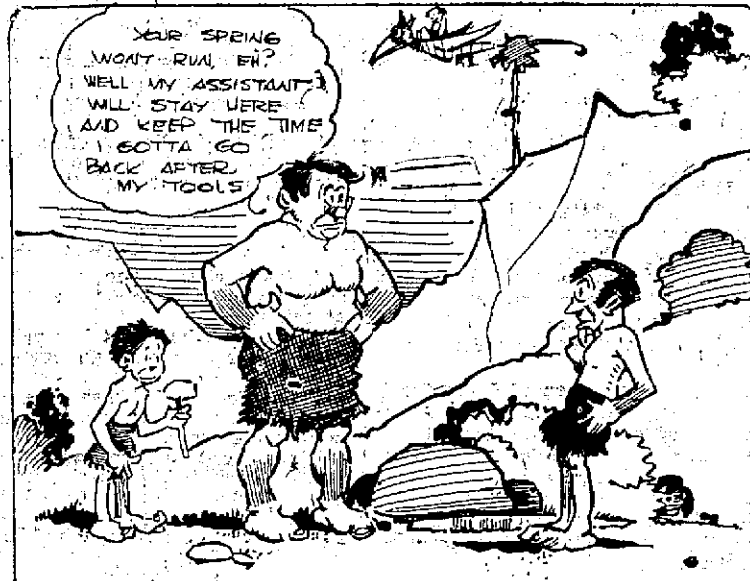

Does Delicate Work. Photographically to measure and record the vibrations of a machine or building is the purpose of a simple apparatus invented in England.

CARPENTIER'S FIGHTING CAREER ENDS; ALL DUE TO PAPKE'S SMASHING VICTORY

The fighting career of Georges Carpentier, French middle-weight champion, has apparently come to an end. His crushing defeat last night at the hands of Billy Papke puts the quietus on his ambitions. Before Papke's victory was regarded as a real live hope, but when Papke, a third rater in this country, gained an easy decision over the Frenchman, the latter's fighting prestige went into tatters.

Why, my father is an adept at blowing his own horn, and mother is equally expert at harping on one string; ma-in-law has to play second fiddle, and Aunt Tabitha leads a humdrum existence; grandpa gives a solo on his nasal organ every night, without the stops; uncle spends his time wetting his whistle; Harry is fond of his pipe, and Gerty is forever ringing the changes on her admirers."

Not Knocking. "Beg pardon," said the agent, as Mr. Grouch opened the door, "but I would like to ask if Mr. Dodger, your next door neighbor, is good pay." "How do I know whether he is good pay or not?" exclaimed Mr. Grouch. "All I know about him is that he has four grandchildren and he still owes for his marriage license."

Dr. Hartman Describes the Phrase, Systemic Catarrh

I received a letter from a good housewife of this state. She had been reading my last article on chronic catarrh. Her letter reads in part: "Dear Doctor Hartman:—I was very much interested in your article on catarrh. I see by your explanation that catarrh is liable to affect any organ of the body, that it can assume the symptoms of a great many different kinds of disease. There was one form of catarrh, however, that you did not mention. I would like your opinion on it. I have heard it somewhere that there is a disease known as systemic catarrh. What do you know about it, and what would you advise?"

My dear Madam:—I think I was the originator of the term systemic catarrh. At least I had never seen it in print until I began to use it. Systemic catarrh describes a condition of the system closely resembling auto intoxication, or self poisoning. The catarrhal organs happen to be so located that the discharge of mucus cannot occur freely. It may be the stomach, or kidneys, or pelvic organs. Now if this vitiated, poisonous mucus cannot escape freely, it will be absorbed by the blood vessels and carried into all parts of the system. It is Nature's attempt to get it out of the system through the kidneys. But in the effort to rid the organ of the poisonous mucus Nature is unintentionally poisoning the whole system.

"A little strength was lost each day,
A little hope dropped by the way,
The feet dragged slowly on the road,
The shoulders bent beneath their load;

Courage seemed dying in the heart,
The will played but a feeble part.
Night brought no ease,
Day no surcease.

From heavy cares or weary smart;
Then why give thanks?"

"Somehow strength lasted through the day,

Hope joined with courage in the way;
The feet still kept the uphill road,
The shoulders did not drop their load.

An unseen Power sustained the heart
When flesh and will failed in their part.

While God gave light
By day and night,
And also grace to bear the smart,
For this give thanks.

"Thanks for the daily bread which feeds

The body's wants, the Spirit's needs;
Thanks for the keen, the quickening word,

"He only lives who lives in God!"
Whether his time on earth is spent
In lordly house or labor's tent,
Thanks for the light

By day or night,
Which shows the way the Master went.
And He gave thanks."

This choice Thanksgiving sentiment, from the British Weekly, is a pleasant reminder that Thanksgiving is at hand and there is reason to believe that the time honored anniversary will be celebrated next Thursday with the spirit which the day inspires.

This annual festival was wisely planned to come at a season of the year when nature had fulfilled her mission, by filling the granaries and storehouses with the products of the year's activities.

The workings of these silent forces are so unobtrusive that they lack appreciation, and call for but little comment, and it is well to call them in review at least once a year, "lest we forget."

Nature is a reliable producer. So reliable that she inspires world-wide confidence. The seed, scattered over the ground, and covered by the soil, is our part of the work, but the processes of germination and development, from the kernel to the full corn in the ear, are beyond the ken of human skill or comprehension.

There are two forces necessary to the success of all large enterprises—one, the brain to conceive and plan, and the mind to execute; the other, the capital to produce fruition. The latter is known as the silent partner, because its only mission is to furnish the sinews of war for the campaign.

The railroads of the country, as well as all other great enterprises, are the property of the silent partners. These undertakings are too large for any one man to finance, unaided, and so, stocks and bonds are issued, in liberal amount, and every investor becomes a partner.

Nature is the best silent partner that humanity knows anything about, because it asks no questions as to pedigree, financial standing, honesty or ability, but greets with a smile every man who puts his hand to the plow, and says, "Come on; I will do my share and more, to make the venture a success."

The partnership with nature differs in many ways from all other kinds of partnerships. There are no written contracts and no bonds are required for the faithful performance of duty.

The poorest tiller of the soil is tolerated without complaint, and rewarded in proportion to his investment, while the science of a Burbank garners rich dividends from the same storehouse.

These mysterious forces, ever ready to respond to the touch of humanity, suggest that back of it all is the God, our common Father, Who creates and controls. And so we come to this Thanksgiving day, in the year of our Lord, nineteen hundred and twelve, with a song of gladness in our hearts for the silent partner, who has done so much to crown the year with blessings.

While nature has richly rewarded the husbandman, by filling his granaries and storehouses with the fruitage of an abundant harvest, we are not all husbandmen, and some of us may be disturbed by the thought that we have no occasion for gratitude, on that account.

If such thoughts annoy us, it may be helpful to remember that the basis of all prosperity—in this fair land which we are so fortunate as to call our home—is the soil, and the wealth which it pours into our treasures in every nook and corner of this great domain.

The wheels of industry, at all our manufacturing centers, hum to the melody of the reaper, and the great community of interests are so closely interwoven that they become mutual. The man who toils today, and the man who furnishes him the opportunity, are alike indebted to the God of harvests, and a song of thanksgiving should inspire every heart.

The war just now being waged with Turkey has brought out some facts concerning hardships and privation which cause the American thanksgiving to stand out in sharp contrast, and renders new significance to the bounty of our harvests.

The wheat lands, in the little province of Bulgaria, are in the fertile valleys between the mountains. They are the property of wealthy landlords, and the harvest season is the festival of the year.

The most primitive methods are employed in gathering the crop, and the peasant women are the principal workers. They make long pilgrimages on foot, like Ruth and Naomi, of old, and with sickles in hand, cut the grain and carry it to the threshing floor.

Their reward, at the close of the season, is a pittance, which represents the bulk of their income for the year, and yet they sing through the harvest, and go home happy. Our waste, as a nation, would keep these simple people in luxury.

But there is a darker side to the history now being written, for pestilence and war have combined to wipe out the Turkish army, and while we celebrate the national holiday, our brothers across the sea are dying like sheep in the streets of the stricken towns and cities.

We have occasion to thank God, not only for the fruitage which has crowned the year with rich abundance, but also to thank Him that neither war nor pestilence has invaded our borders. As a nation we are at peace today, with all mankind, and the angel of death is not marshalling his forces against us.

But thanksgiving means more than a song in the sanctuary, or a thank offering in grateful remembrance. It has a broader significance than the gathering of friends and loved ones about the festive board, for in the last analysis it comes down to the individual heart and life.

This sacred domain is where we fight our battles, and suffer defeat or win victories. The first verse of the little poem is true to the experience of many lives, for the shadows were so dense that not a ray of hope penetrated the gloom.

"The feet dragged slowly on the road,
The shoulders bent beneath the load;
The will played but a feeble part."

Yet, "Somehow strength lasted through the day,

Hope joined with courage in the way,
The feet still kept the uphill road,
The shoulders did not drop their load.

An unseen Power sustained the heart
When flesh and will failed in their part:

While God gave light
By day and night,
And also grace to bear the smart,
For this give thanks."

FROM THE OUTSIDE.

The letter signed "Edgerton," which appeared in last night's Gazette, should be generally read by Janesville people, because it expresses outside sentiment concerning inside conditions, and the efforts now being made to clean up the town.

It is not surprising that a late communication, which practically committed the business men to a wide open town, should excite comment from an outsider, and more especially because the accusation was not challenged, but charges of this kind are so insane that they demand no refutation.

The business men of Janesville believe in morality. They were present one hundred strong at the city hall meeting, a few weeks ago, demanding the enforcement of law, and they created the committee of fifteen to aid the city authorities in cleaning up the city and improving moral conditions.

That now and then an exception should exist, is to be expected, for some men are so narrow between the eyes that they never see beyond the end of their nose, and every community has a sprinkling of this class. They represent nothing in the way of public sentiment, and are so destitute of moral courage that they refuse to stand tied long enough to be counted.

One of the timorous souls, who imagined that the trade of a couple of houses of ill-fame was worth more to him than the patronage of the four thousand virtuous women of the city, proposed to boycott the Gazette, for encouraging reform, but took to the tail timber when a little free advertising was suggested.

This class of men, however, are a negligible quantity in Janesville, and the people of Edgerton, Evansville, Clinton and the surrounding towns may be assured that the business men of the city are backing the movement to better conditions.

While the churches are actively interested, the campaign being conducted is in no sense a religious crusade. There is no half way ground on questions of morality, and while indifference may produce lethargy, as is often the case, when public sentiment is once aroused, the line which divides the forces of good and evil is clearly defined, and the forces which make for righteousness are always in the ascendency.

This is the condition which prevails today in Janesville, and while difference of opinion may arise concerning methods employed, there is no division of sentiment—as to the object to be obtained—in the minds of the great majority.

Language.

I love to hear the brakeman yell in his peculiar tongue,
So loudly that it seems as if he wants to spit a lung.
I cannot understand him, but I like to figure out

It's entertainment rich for me to try and understand
The language of the candy boy, who's always right on hand.

In theaters to sell his wares, it always makes me smile.

VERDICT BROUGHT IN BY JURY LAST NIGHT

JURORS FOUND HARRY BERGER AND EDWARD MEYER GUILTY OF THIRD DEGREE MURDER AND RAPE.

OUT ONLY SHORT TIME

Verdict Was Returned in An Hour and Twenty Minutes and Sentence Will Be Passed on Them Monday Afternoon.

At twenty minutes after nine o'clock last evening after deliberating an hour and twenty minutes on their decision, the jury unannounced to try the case of the State of Wisconsin against Harry F. Berger and Edward Meyer, in circuit court, brought in a verdict finding the defendants guilty of murder in the third degree and of rape.

The verdict of the jury was presented through their foreman, S. G. Strong of Beloit, and after it had been presented, Judge Grimm ordered the two young men remanded to the county jail, in the custody of the sheriff, until two o'clock Monday afternoon when he announced sentence would be pronounced.

According to the statutes, the crimes of which the two boys have been found guilty by the court are punishable of from seven to fourteen years for murder in the third degree and from ten to thirty years for rape.

The formal verdict as brought in by the jury was as follows: "We, the jury, impeached to try the issue in the above-mentioned action, find the defendants guilty of murder in the third degree as charged in the first count of the information; and we further find the defendants guilty of rape, as charged in the second count of the information."

Dated the 22nd day of November, 1912.

(Signed) S. G. STRONG, foreman. The other members of the jury in the case were: E. B. Caldwell, Johnston; William Sawyer, Beloit; Fred Dockhorn, Bradford; A. J. Winnegar, W. D. Garde and William D. Bell, Beloit; O. P. Murphy, Fulton; George Rea, Edgerton; John Sveon, Avon; J. K. Nagel, Newark; and C. E. Culver, La Prairie.

Formal motion for a stay of judgment and a new trial of the case will be filed with the court by Attorney Thomas S. Nolan for the defense. It is not likely that the court will grant this motion and the best that can be hoped for is that the sentence to be passed on Meyer and Berger be made light.

Reading of the charges to the jury by the court was commenced at half past seven o'clock last evening, and a few minutes before eight o'clock, the five forms of verdicts, as prepared at the instructions of the judge, were given to the jury and they were taken to the jury room to deliberate and prepare their verdict for the court.

The charges to the jury, read by the judge, filled a number of typewritten pages, and the reading occupied the better part of a half hour.

In his opening remarks, the judge explained the nature of the case, and the seriousness of the two counts against the defendants, that of murder in the first degree, and that of rape. He then said that the jury should make their decisions as to the merits of the counts and bring in their verdict accordingly.

He expressed in detail the various degrees of murder, murder in the first degree, where the crime is premeditated, willfully executed with a formed design, not accidental; second degree murder, where an act was committed immediately dangerous to someone besides the person who committed the act, and showing a depraved state of mind; and third degree murder, where death has been caused by the commission of a felony, and rape constitutes a felony.

He said if the defendants were engaged in a common design, the judge said, they are equally guilty and the verdict should be brought in accordingly. A verdict for one of the degrees of murder did not preclude, he said, the possibility of bringing in a verdict of guilty for rape, as well as murder, and he defined the meaning of the phrase to show the difference between it and a statutory offense or a felonious attack.

In case the attack was made with the consent of Matilda Bergstrom and the jury did not bring a verdict for one of the degrees of murder, the court instructed the jury to bring in a verdict of manslaughter, provided they were convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that that was the offense committed.

The proof offered by the state, the court said, was circumstantial evidence, and a clear explanation of circumstantial evidence was given the jurors. Circumstantial evidence, the court said, has been made lawful, and must therefore be considered by the jurors as lawful. Other matters in connection with what has been taken up in the trial, which were discussed by the judge in his charge to the jury were the opinions of the expert witnesses, the physicians who testified; the testimony as to the previous good character of the defendants; and the testimony of the defendants offered in the trial. Intoxication, the judge said, was no excuse for the commission of the crime, but the jury might take into consideration the condition of the defendants in the considering what they had come. The jurors were warned not to act hastily but exercise all judgment in preparing their verdict.

The five verdicts offered by the judge for the use of the jury were as follows: 1st, a verdict finding the defendants guilty of any of the degrees of murder and rape with a blank space for designating the degree of murder; a verdict finding them guilty of murder; but not guilty of rape; a verdict finding them not guilty of murder; but guilty of rape; a verdict finding them guilty of man. slaughter; and lastly a verdict finding them not guilty of the charges made.

The arguments of the attorneys to the jury were presented to the jury just after the testimony was closed yesterday afternoon, about three o'clock.

No notices were sent out to the city schools this week, but there was a considerable increase in the attendance nevertheless.

End of Golden Nugget Day. Men have found a mass of native copper weighing 420 tons and they have discovered a chunk of pure silver weighing one and one-half tons, but the largest nugget of gold that has yet been seen weighed only 190 pounds. And gold seekers are informed that larger finds in the future are unlikely.

MAY SECURE BONUS FOR HIS INVENTION

J. H. Huntress Will Claim Award of $10,000 Offered by Sugar Company For Successful Beet Topping Machine.

J. H. Huntress of this city who has perfected a sugar beet topping and digging machine will claim a $10,000 bonus which has been offered by a western sugar company for a perfected machine of the character which he has invented.

Mr. Huntress states that he has secured a contract which gives the terms of the company and in his own mind he feels confident that he has fulfilled all of the requirements. The payment of the award to him, should he be lucky enough to secure it, would not involve the purchase of the patent rights or any interest in the manufacture of the machine, Mr. Huntress says, as the money is simply a prize offered for the company to inventors in the hopes of securing a machine which would be worth thousands of dollars to the sugar beet industry.

In order to secure the money Mr. Huntress explains that he will doubtless be called on to give a demonstration although he does not know the exact terms of the company in that regard. Should a demonstration be asked it will be necessary of course to await another year.

Mr. Huntress is very much pleased over the work of the machine which was given its first test since it has been perfected, on the Charles Wright farm on Milton avenue the first of the week. Mr. Wright has done some work in connection with the machine and left a row of beets in the ground for the purpose of trying out the top per and digger.

Mr. Huntress explains that the beets are topped before they are taken from the ground. The foliage is pushed to one side by revolving arms and the tops rest against a shield which leaves them in the middle of the rows. After the tops are removed the plow digs the beets and the roots are deposited in the furrow which the machine makes.

The soil conditions have not been as favorable as usual for the testing of the invention, but in spite of that the machine did very satisfactory work at the latest test. "There have been a number of attempts to construct diggers which would top the beets but all of them have been failures. Mr. Huntress' success comes as the result of six years of work along this line."

John Francis and Stanley Brown Arraigned This Morning—Trial Set for Next Saturday.

John Francis and Stanley Brown both Janesville men, were arraigned in the municipal court this morning, charged with driving their automobiles at a speed of more than eight miles an hour up Milwaukee street hill yesterday noon. Both plead "not guilty" to the charge and their trial was set for nine o'clock next Saturday morning. This date setting the conference of the defendants and City Attorney W. H. Dougherty, who will prosecute the case. Warrants were served on Francis and Brown yesterday afternoon after the complaint had been made to Chief of Police Appleby by a witness of the alleged violation of the speed ordinance. It was reported to the police that the defendants engaged in a race and were traveling at the rate twice that permitted in the downtown section.

WILLIAM L. LOUCKS FOUND DEAD IN BED AT HIS HOME TODAY

Day Clerk at the Park Hotel Was Suddenly Stricken With Heart Trouble Early This Morning.

William L. Loucks, aged forty-two years, who for the past year and a half has been day clerk at the Park hotel and has for the past twenty years been identified with that hotel, was found dead in bed at his home, 120 South Franklin street, by his mother, Mrs. E. Loucks, when she went to call him at half past seven o'clock this morning. Death is believed to have been caused by heart failure, and was sudden, as he had not complained of any illness until yesterday when he had a fainting spell about two o'clock in the afternoon while working at the hotel. He left the Park hotel last evening at 7:15 and went directly home, retiring at half past eight o'clock. Aside from the fainting spell, which it was thought had been brought on by inhaling the fumes of turpentine in varnish with which he had been working, he had not complained of any illness, and he had never shown any indications of heart trouble. His death is a sudden shock to his mother and sister and his many friends in this city. A physician was summoned at once but after making an examination of the body, expressed the opinion that death had occurred an hour or two before, probably between five and six o'clock this morning.

William L. Loucks was born September 27, 1870, in the town of Darien, but most of his life had been spent in this city, except when away on business. He had been employed at the Park hotel at various times for about twenty years, and was well known to the traveling public as well as in this city. He was also clerk of the Hotel Myers when his uncle, Edward Johnson, was the proprietor there, a number of years ago. He spent a year in the west, travelling for a furniture firm, and after leaving that employment, returned to Janesville to take the position he held at the time of his death.

Mr. Loucks was a man of many excellent qualities, and had a large circle of friends here. He was of a genial, lovable disposition and was possessed of many virtues. He is survived by a father, S. L. Loucks, Kansas City, a mother, Mrs. Frances Loucks of this city, and a sister, Miss Frances Loucks of this city. Word of his death has been sent to his father, and arrangements have been delayed pending the arrival of word from him.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home, 120 South Franklin street at two o'clock Monday afternoon.

BAIRD VS. CARLE IS NEXT CASE UP

$100,000 Damage Suit is Next Action For Jury in Circuit Court Coming up Monday.

The next case which will come up for trial in the circuit court following the sentencing of Harry Berger and Edward Meyer, Monday afternoon at two o'clock, will be that of Arthur A. Baird against Norman L. Carle of this city on the ground of the alienation of his wife's affections, for which he demands $100,000 damages; Mrs. Baird being Mr. Carle's sister. Attorney Charles E. Pierce has been retained counsel for the plaintiff, Attorney Edgar L. Wood of Milwaukee, to assist him in conducting the case. Jeffris, Mount, Oestreich & Avery have the case for the defendant. A large package of depositions from witnesses in California have been received and filed at the office of the clerk of the court. Mr. Baird, the plaintiff, is in the city.

The case of Emerson vs. Holverson, which was on the day calendar to come up following the murder trial, will be laid over owing to the fact that the time for Baird vs. Carle case was settled upon by the court at the time of the calling of the October calendar. The Emerson against Holverson action will doubtless follow the damage suit. The case of Harvey vs. Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance company is next on the calendar. A jury has been waived in the case of the Oostburg Steel Foundry against the Monitor Auto Works.

The case of Wallace Ingalls of Racine against the Daily News Publishing company of Beloit, a libel suit for a large sum, has been continued for the term. A number of other cases which are on the calendar have settlements pending.

DAGGER OF BRAGANZA RETURNED TO STATE

Famous Weapon of Priceless Value, Stolen From Portuguese Royal Palace, Found in Letter Box.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Lisbon, Portugal, Nov. 23.—The famous dagger of the Dukes of Braganza, long coveted by wealthy American collectors, has been returned to the state as mysteriously as it disappeared from the royal palace or necessary, on the night of October 4, 1910, when King Manuel fled from his castle to find refuge on British shores.

The weapon, studded with precious stones and bearing chiselmanship attributed to Benvenuto Cellini, is estimated to be worth $50,000. Many foreigners have sought to purchase it, romantic tales associated with the blade having added a historic worth to its intrinsic value.

At the time of the revolution the republican leaders visited the deserted palace and took possession of all the jewels and works of art that the royal family had left behind. The dagger and some other valuables failed, however, to find their way into the hands of the new authorities.

Some time ago the government decided that all the furniture, jewels and other property seized at the palace, but which belonged to the fallen monarch and his mother, Queen Amelia, should be returned to them in London, and the old inventory books of the Braganza family are being examined to separate what belongs rightfully to the royal family from what is considered as the property of the republic.

Recently the dagger was secretly placed in the letter box of the official who is conducting the inventory. There was nothing to indicate by whom it had been restored.

The notorious Spanish brigand chief Gaspar Cazalla, whom the government has relentlessly pursued for two years is dead, with his own dagger in his breast.

He died with his back to the wall, fighting bravely to the last and surrendering to death only after he had seen his whole band wiped out. Five of his followers had been killed, eleven rendered helpless from wounds and fourteen made prisoners.

Cazalla, a ruthless robber and a menace to society generally, had won a certain renown because of his physical prowess and unquestioned courage. Recently he operated in the district of Elvira, where he was surprised in his mountain retreat by a strong military force reinforced by many armed peasants.

In the fight that followed four soldiers and two peasants were killed and ten others of the attacking force were more or less seriously wounded.

When all of the brigands except the chief had been killed or overpowered, Cazalla, a perfect giant, clubbing his rifle, broke through the ring of soldiers and escaped. Hotly pursued, he took refuge in an abandoned windmill. There he held off his assailants until his ammunition was exhausted. Then when a rush upon him was made, realizing that all hope was gone, the chief stabbed himself in the heart, dying instantly.

MEDAL OF HONOR IS CONFERRED BY TAFT

Five Young Men Have Highest Honor Possible Conferred For Bravery.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Nov. 23.—Five young men officers and enlisted men in Uncle Sam's active military force came together at the White House today to receive the highest award that can be given an American soldier, the medal of honor. Four of them from the Presidio, San Francisco brought memories of the hunt and capture of the Filipino pirate chief, Jukiri, in 1909, while the fifth, a cavalry officer who had helped protect the town of Douglas, Arizona, last year, heard modestly the retelling of his riding into a rain of bullets to stop a fight that threatened the lives of Americans. The soldiers decorated were: First Lieutenant Archie Miller, and second Lieutenants Arthur H. Wilson, and John T. Kennedy, all of the 6th cavalry; Quartermaster Sergeant Joseph Henderson, an enlisted man of Troop B, Smith's cavalry, and Captain Julien Gajot of the 1st cavalry.

President Taft had summoned to the White House for the ceremony at 2:30 o'clock all of the medal of honor men now stationed or living near Washington. Invited to the White House to do honor to the younger members of the distinguished order were Major General William H. Carter, Brigadier General Ernest A. Carlington, Brigadier General Nelson A. Miles, retired, Major General George L. Gillespie, retired, and nearly a score of others whose deeds of gallantry in action rank back through the history of Cuban and Philippine campaigns to the stirring days of Indian fighting and the Civil War. The sixth cavalry men honored today all won their spurs in the Philippines. They were under orders from General Leonard Wood when they went on the trail of Jukiri, who had killed hundreds of Chinese and Moros and had become the terror of the Jolo archipelago.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. IYER.

A THRIFT SUGGESTION.

The slot machine, which in this country everywhere is in evidence, is almost unknown in France.

Why? Because the Frenchman saves his pennies one by one until he has enough to buy a rente, a government bond. It may not be for a large amount, but there it is, principal and interest, to him and his forever.

And we? We as a people believe pennies were made for immediate distribution. No sooner do we get them, if we do not buy editions of the evening papers, than we patronize the slot machine.

We must be rid of our cents. Which is not a pun. We may have no need or immediate desire for the chewing gum or candy or cigar or drinking cup or what not which the machines everywhere vend. The desire is to disseminate small change.

We are a nation of penny pushers. We care nothing evidently for small coins. There are localities in the west where the penny is held in contempt. All commodities, even the newspapers, are cents.

Thrifty? We do not know the meaning of the word as the French understand it. When the French government wants money it needs only offer a loan expressed in small denomination. In almost every case the loan is oversubscribed the first day it is offered.

We spend our pennies; the French save them and buy bonds.

The French every girl, however humble, when married has her "dot," her life marriage portion. It is the aggregate of careful saving of small coins.

The French peasants are the most thrifty and the most contented people in the world. With an absurdly small holding of an acre or two of land they are independent.

We waste more than we save.

Noting the disposition of the average American to push pennies into slot machines, a recent writer among us makes this suggestion:

Why not each of us own his own machine?

Why not?

Here is the opportunity for reducing the high cost of living, or the cost of high living. Place a slot machine near your front door, so that morning and evening as you go out and in you may utilize your copper cents.

Think it over. Even if you do not install the machine the suggestion may put you in the way of thriftier habits.

Quit patronizing the slot machines and begin patronizing yourself.

For Psychological Research.

One of the most remarkable London clubs is the International Club of Psychological Research, in Regent street. It has no concern with merely earthly things. Although the club has only been founded a few months, it has already over 500 members. Every possible "ist" is represented. There are theosophists, spiritualists, phrenologists, psychologists, spiritualists, mesmerists, and so on.

Poor Spelling as a Lure.

The critical eye of a conscientious orthographer was attracted by the sign above a Third Avenue luncheon, and he went in to set the proprietor right. "Yes," said the luncheon man, "I know 'sandwiches' is wrong, but you see that sign attracts a lot of 'smart Alecks' into the store who want to teach me how to spell and after they come they usually stop long enough to order something. What'll yours be?"—New York Tribune.

HOPES TO WIN CASE IN HIGHER COURT

Signorina Theresa Labriola.

Signorina Theresa Labriola, the first woman admitted to the bar in Italy, but stricken from the rolls by a ruthless opponent of woman's rights, the Re court of appeal, has carried her case to the highest tribunal and still hopes to win.

The point laid hold of by the court of appeal is that a law of 1874 regulates the legal profession. The code was drawn on the assumption that a lawyer is of the male sex. It does not forbid a woman to practice, but merely fails to embody the idea of such a contingency.

O'clock. District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie spoke first, presenting the plea of the state for the conviction of the two defendants on the charges of murder in the first degree, and of rape and outlining the case as shown by the circumstantial evidence introduced by the prosecution. The testimony of the various witnesses for the state showed that Berger and Meyer had gone to the Bergsman home on the night of September 30, and after dragging Matilda Bergsman from the house, had made a criminal attack upon, which caused her death. The expert opinions offered by the medical experts, he said, showed that the act had not been committed with the consent of the woman, and he closed with an appeal to the jury to avenge her death. His address to the jury lasted about half an hour.

The arguments of Thomas S. Nolan for the defense followed those of the district attorney. He sought to show that the evidence introduced by the state was faulty with regard to the evidence to show that the attack on the woman was made without her consent; that the attack, according to the defendants, was made with her consent, and that their testimony was entitled to as much consideration as that of the doctors. The case, he said, was a sad commentary on society in the city of Janesville when minors such as these boys should be allowed to procure liquor, and all they wanted of it, in saloons. The testimony of the expert witnesses, he said, was biased by their interest in securing the fees paid, and especially so since efforts had been made in the county board to secure a witness fee of twenty-five dollars for expert medical witnesses. He also referred to the possibility of some of the wounds particularly emphasized in the testimony of the physicians as having been made when the body was washed. He devoted forty minutes to his appeal to the jurors.

The arguments for the state were closed by Attorney Charles Pierce, who has been assisting the district attorney in fighting the case for the prosecution. His remarks on the case were eloquent, and occupied an hour's time. He answered the various questions raised by the counsel for the defense and brought to a stronger light the evidence of the state. He gave a graphic description of the facts in the case, as shown by the state's evidence, and appealed to the jurors to act on these facts and not on sympathy. He took up various parts of the testimony of the state and of the defense as well to prove his contentions, particularly with reference to statements made by Meyer in rebuttal to the claim of good character of the boys made by their counsel. The various degrees of murder and first degree manslaughter, and particularly first degree murder were defined, and he appealed to the jury to bring in a finding for first degree murder, as charged by the state.

At The Theatre

"THE RED WIDOW."
Managers in Boston have been trying for some time to get Raymond Hitchcock, who is starring in "The Red Widow" to go there. This would be in the nature of a return engagement, for the play had its first hearing in the hub city. And to return there for another run would prevent other cities from hearing this unusual play which has been so much heralded during the past few months. It was the thrilling adventure of Anna Vavara, a Russian nihilist that prompted Channing Pollock, and Renold Wolf, to put her career into story form. Charles J. Gebert was so impressed with the narrative that he set it to music. Cohan and Harris then spent thirty-seven thousand dollars for scenery, and wardrobe, and then provided the star with a company numbering nearly one hundred people to present it. The Red Widow part will be played by the clever little prima donna, Flora Zaballa. The company will come to Janesville direct from Chicago where for the last ten weeks they have played to capacity audiences at Cohan's Grand.

"The Red Widow" will appear at Myers Theatre, Sunday evening, Nov. 24.

"TESS OF THE STORM COUNTRY."
One of the many striking features of Jones and Crane's latest production "Tess of the Storm Country" (Rupert Hughes' dramatization of Grace Miller, White's widely read novel) is a marvelously realistic reproduction of one of nature's most beautiful creations, Lake Cayuga in the throes of the famous electrical storms that come and go so strangely and swiftly. The origin of these storms with the attendant brilliant display of electricity has been the musical comedies. He was starred in "Miss Bob White," and has had the support of such stars as Francis Wilson, Frank Daniels and others, but it is said the hit of his life is his present part of the "The Red Widow" in "A Modern Eve."

A Yonkers clergyman, whose name was not made public, advertised for the owner of a man's watch lost and found in North Broadway three years ago. The minister said a recent convert of his church found the timepiece and his conscience was pricking him.

CLUB FOR DOGS NEW LONDON SENSATION

Provides Comforts That Might be Envied by Average Professional Man—Other English News.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Nov. 23.—A luxuriously appointed club for dogs has been established on Piccadilly. Here, comfort that might be envied by the average business and professional man will be afforded the pets whose owners are able to meet the social requirements and pay the dues.

The dogs will share the use of their quarters with their masters and mistresses but the connection of the latter with the club will be dependent upon the membership of the canines. The initial expense of equipping the place was $75,000, and the cost of maintaining it will be considerable. A matron and four assistants will look after the ordinary needs of members and a veterinary surgeon will call twice each day to provide such medical attendance as may be necessary.

Lapdogs will be permitted to lounge in the library and smoking rooms while the larger breeds will be accommodated in a suite of rooms equipped with cushioned stalls and brass fittings. Uniformed attendants will meet the dogs at the door and conduct them to their favorite corners.

The club, to be known as The United Travelers and Counties Club, starts with a membership of 450 humans, of whom 270 have recognized pedigrees with titles. Lord and Lady Tenterden formally opened the human section of the club, while Beaumont Blunderbuss, the world's champion bulldog, stood sponsor for the four-legged part of the enterprise.

One of the features of the club will be the care of fancy dogs which can be sent to the house by out-of-town members for safe-keeping during the big London bench shows.

The strict censorship exercised in order to protect military secrets has prevented the reading public from learning much of the identity of the principal actors in the Balkan struggle, but one name which seems likely to become as familiar as Kuropatkin, Oyama, Kuroki and Nogi, is Putnik. General Putnik is the commander-in-chief of the Serbian forces which have been operating around Uskub.

Of him a correspondent at the Serbian headquarters writes:

"General Putnik is a military genius to whom much of the success of the war is undoubtedly due. As I saw him for the first time at Kestovatz, I was struck by the extraordinary likeness which he bore to General Grant, both in feature and build. He has organized the marvellously successful campaign against the Turk."

"Placid and gentle-eyed, one of the kindest of men, I should think, he is adored by his staff and by all the ranks. He is the 'Bobs' of the Serbian army, and every soldier I have talked to speaks of him in terms of highest devotion and admiration."

The influence of the late William E. Gladstone on behalf of the Christians in the Balkans still lives. Mrs. Drew, a daughter of the statesman having in mind her father's friendship for these people has sent a donation in his name of $500 to the Balkans relief fund. This fund, raised by the Balkans Committee, is growing rapidly, and besides contributing to it many people are offering their personal services as nurses. Several delegations of nurses have already been dispatched to the front and more will follow.

The claim of publishers that you can get most anything you want by advertising has received further support. Dr. J. J. Scanlon, who is advertising the monetary loss involved in injuries to the hand in connection with the Workmen's Compensation Act, published an offer of $5 for a workman who, having lost the thumb, index, middle and ring fingers of one hand by accident, was back at his work. William Staniford, a railroad employee, claimed and was given the reward. Nineteen years ago Staniford lost all his fingers except the little finger, of his right hand, but he not only proved that he had since continued his duties, but demonstrated that he could paper, paint, and mend shoes, play the organ and write with the maimed hand.

An organization of all shades of political opinion has been formed in Scotland for the promotion of higher education in the rural districts. In building up technical schools and universities in the towns and cities there has been a tendency to neglect higher education in the sparsely settled rural districts, with the result that many capable students have no opportunity of completing their studies. The new organization is gathering evidence of this condition which will be placed before Parliament.

WEST LIMA

West Lima, Nov. 23.—Shredding corn seems to be the main business of the farmers in the vicinity lately. Ed Stone, Bert Dixon, Harvey Bleasdale, Gail Richmond and others have had the work done this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Rice of Milton, were calling in this neighborhood Thursday.

Fred Masterson and wife spent Monday evening at George Green's.

Mrs. J. L. Shaw of Milton visited her sister Mrs. E. D. Coon Thursday and called on her niece Mrs. Mame Green in the afternoon.

A turkey, a small pig, a cat, and a skunk were killed on the railroad track through here within the last few days.

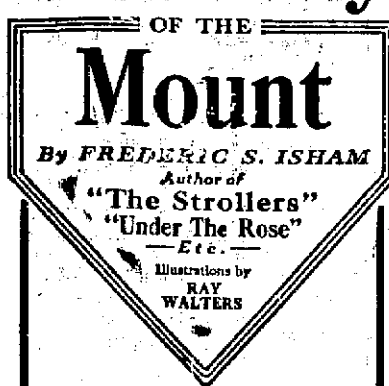

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Rood called at George Green's Tuesday evening.

Charles Patterson of Milton Junction is assisting Ed. Coon with his farm work for a few days.

Rev. Randolph of Milton gives a lecture at Lim Hall Saturday evening November 23.

A farm was sold in this vicinity within the last few days for $125 an acre. It is reported that another man was offered $140 an acre for his property. Another good farm of 154 acres is on the market for $100 an acre if sold before spring.

The Lady Mount

Copyright 1908, by The Bobbs-Merrill Co.
"That is just what I was asking myself when I saw you, my Lady."
"And, of course, knowing there could be no—that it was too senseless."
The words she was searching for failed her; she looked toward the path over the neck of rock, but he continued to stand between it and her.

"I have heard the story in all its details; all that passed at the Mount, while Nanette was there. And, instead of having undermined his belief, she felt she had only strengthened it. 'I am sure you went to the Monastery St. Raulphe, knowing—'
"You are sure!" she interrupted quickly. "It wasn't long ago you were sure it was I who betrayed you, and—"
"I was wrong, then, but, I am not wrong now."

Behind her, my lady's hand closed hard on the rock.
"Deny it!" his voice went on. "In so many words!"
"Why should I?" She caught her breath quickly. "I denied something to you once, and you did not believe." "I'll believe you now!"
"I should feel very much flattered, I am sure; but after—"
A spark of defiance began to gleam in her eyes. "You are sure one moment, and not the next! You are ready to believe, or not to believe!" More certain now, she lifted her head; she, whose assurance and wit had never failed her at court, would not be put to confusion by him!

His answer was unexpected; to her; to himself. Perhaps it was the peasant—the untamed half-peace—in his blood that caused it; that made a sudden, unceremonious act, his reply! He caught both her hands; drew her to him. He knew she could never care for him—she, the beautiful lady! But he forgot himself for the moment; thought only of what she had done; her courage, her fineness, her delicate loveliness! Her life for his. To pay a fancied debt, perhaps? And all the while he had thought—Self-reproaches fell from his lips; were followed by bolder, more daring words. All he would have said the night on the beach, when he had borne her from the fiery rock to the ship, now burst from him; all he had felt when he had held her in his arms—motionless, unresisting, the still, white face upturned, offering itself freely to his gaze!

At the neck of the rock, beneath his feet, the waves thundered; near them, wild birds circled, wheeled and were borne on by the strong breath of the wind. Had he spoken; what had he said? A gradual consciousness of the beating of the sea smote his senses, as with rhythmic regularity it arose. He listened; slowly in his eyes that light that demanded—claimed, as it were, its own—was replaced by another; his hands released hers. My lady made no sound; her proud lips trembled. Very pale, she leaned back.

So silence lengthened. "Pardon, my Lady!" he said at last, very humbly. "It had not occurred to me my secret was not safe; that I, master of ships and men, should not be master of myself! But I had not expected to be alone with your Ladyship, and, a shadow of a smile crossed the strong, reckless face, your Ladyship can weigh the provocation! If the excuse will not serve, I have none other to offer. Certainly, will I retract nothing. What's said, is said, and—no lies will unsay it!"

He looked at the water; the tide was nearly in; he turned. She would never see him again, for which she would be very glad, since the sight of him must always have been hateful to

H. L. Blomquist, a very well known merchant of Esdaile, Wis., states:—"My wife considers Foley's Honey and Tar Compound the best cough cure on the market. ner. Had not fate decreed—bitterly—she should look upon him only as an enemy? It might be, in time, she would condone his presumption, when his presence would no longer vex her! He was going one way; she, another, soon, with—

"You—you are mistaken, Monsieur!" My lady's tone was tremulous.

"Mistaken?"

"The Marquis de Beauvilliers left last night on a fishing bark."

"Left?" abruptly he wheeled. "Why?" She did not answer. "You mean?" Before the sudden swift question that shone from his eyes, hers fell.

"Speak!" He seized her hand; his dark, eager face was near hers now. "You have sent him away? He will never return?" She lifted her head, answered not in words, but a new light in her eyes met the flash of his. "My Lady!" he cried, bewildered for the moment at what that glance revealed. An instant she seemed once more striving to combat him, when, drawing her gently toward him, he bent lower, kissed softly her lips.

"Is it, then, true?"

"You find it so hard to believe?"

"That you love me? That I seem no longer your enemy?"

"My enemy? You? Who risked so much—saved my life! Ah, no, no! Do you not remember?" softly, "he, too said—'Forget!'"

"I only remember I have long loved you! For me have you ever been the princess—who dwelt in the clouds—in a palace, enchanted—"
Her face changed. "That saddens you! Forgive me!"

"It seems like a dream—that life, then! All made up of lightness and gaiety; courtiers and fine masques, until—"
Beneath the bright gold of her hair, my lady's brow knit.

"Until?"

"Nay; I know not until—just when! Only, for long, I seem to have lived in a world, unreal and false. Last night, when in the garden, I felt stifled, this marriage! Arranged for what?" She made a quick gesture. "The words came—had to come—though they hurt my lord's pride; touched his vanity! Nothing deeper! It was gone. Besides—"

My lady stopped. "Go on!" he urged, his voice eager.

"That is all. At least, all I would acknowledge to myself, then."

"And now?" His arm tightened; he held my lady close. "Now?"

Her lips lifted; though silent, made answer in the abandonment of the moment, the past and all its vicissitudes vanished; only the present held them—the present and the future, beautiful as the horizon, now rosy and glowing beneath the warm touch of the dawn. The tide came in and the tide went out.

"Mon capitaine must have changed his mind," said old Pierre at the inn. And he gazed toward a ship, stranded on the sands of the harbor.

LAUNCH FIRST STEAMSHIP NORWEGIAN-AMERICAN LINE.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, Nov. 23.—The first of two vessels under construction at Birkenhead for the new Norwegian American steamship line was launched today in the presence of a party of representatives of Norway and the United States. The second vessel is to be launched in January and it is expected to have everything in readiness to inaugurate the new service in April of next year. Both vessels are twin screw steamers of about 12,000 tons. They will be splendidly equipped and will have accommodations for about 1,000 passengers each. They will sail between Christiania and New York with Stavanger and Birgen as ports of call. The service will be the first regularly maintained between Norway and the United States.

CUBAN ELECTION DISPUTED BY LIBERAL ASSEMBLY.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Havana, Nov. 23.—A National Liberal Assembly convened in Havana today to take steps to dispute the legality of the recent election in which Gen. Mario Menocal was elected president of the republic. The assembly is composed of followers of Alfredo X. Zayas, who was a leading opponent of Gen. Menocal in the latter's contest for the presidency.

Utterly Wretched

Nervous Prostration Long Endured Before Remedy Was Found.

Miss Minerva Reminger, Upper Bern, Pa., writes: "For several years I had nervous prostration, and was utterly wretched. I lived on bread and beef tea because my stomach would not retain anything else. I took many remedies, but obtained no relief until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, when I began to gain at once. Am now cured."

Pure, rich blood makes good, strong nerves, and this is why Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies and enriches the blood, cures so many nervous diseases.

TODAY'S EDGERTON NEWS

Edgerton, Nov. 23.—H. S. Sigleko, of Madison, the division commander of the Sons of Veterans, C. H. Hudson, of Madison, secretary and treasurer, and L. W. McComb of Stoughton, assistant organizer, were in Edgerton yesterday transacting business in regard to the order.

Miss Maggie Rochery of Janesville, was in Edgerton and attended the dancing party last evening.

Mrs. Frank Williams entertained the ladies of the W. R. C. Friday afternoon of this week. The hours were passed in piecing a quilt for the Soldiers' Home at Waupaca, Wis., which will be sent with a box of donations for the home at Thanksgiving time.

Friday evening the young men of Edgerton held a private dancing party in the Academy hall, which is in the Schmeling block. Thirty-five couples were present and all enjoyed a social time. This dance was considered one of the best dances ever held in Academy hall, consisting of the usual waltzes and two-steps and rye waltzes and also a few square dances. The pieces played were the latest hits of the season and were enjoyed by everyone present. It is plain to be seen that there will have to be more of these social gatherings in the future.

Rev. Schoenfeldt will be absent from the pulpit Sunday, so Dr. Deland of Milton college will fill the pulpit in his stead.

Thomas Wileman suffered severe injury by running a large spike through his right foot yesterday.

TODAY'S EVANSVILLE NEWS

EXTERIOR OF DEPOT NEARLY COMPLETED

Fine New Building Erected by Railway Company Will be Finished By December 15.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Evansville, Nov. 23.—The exterior of our new depot is nearing completion and one is now able to get a very good idea of its appearance when completed. To many it is quite a disappointment as many expected a larger station, but it is certainly an improvement over the old station and strangers arriving here will be much more favorably impressed than with the former station.

The new building is twenty-two by ninety feet—small it is true, and not seemingly built with any outlook toward our future growth, but it will be stately modern and the interior decorations will be especially fine.

F. W. Briggs of Chicago, contractors, expects it will be completed by December 15. At present men are engaged in erecting a shelter on the opposite side of the track for south bound passengers who must await trains in inclement weather.

Orrin Green of Edgerton Met With Accident While Trying to Get on a Freight Train.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Edgerton, Nov. 23.—While attempting to get on the freight train which passes through here at noon, Orrin Green, a young man of this city, slipped and fell, and the toes of one foot were cut off, and the bone and flesh of the foot as far as the ankle were so badly smashed that it was necessary to cut off that portion of the foot. Green was trying to get on the train in order to ride to Milton Junction, but fell and his foot slipped under the wheels. His cries attracted the attention of the train crew, and the train was stopped and he was taken to a physician's office to have his injuries dressed. The accident occurred shortly before one o'clock. Further amputation of the foot, it is thought, will not be necessary.

The semi-annual meeting of the Congregational Men's club, was held last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Boutelle. A lively discussion on the question of a unanimous verdict in jury trials took place. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. Walter Vickers, when Mr. T. E. Gettle will talk to the club on the workman's compensation law.

The system of rhetorical which is now being conducted in the high school is that of extemporaneous speaking. The nature of the work is well indicated by what was accomplished yesterday. Eighty-seven pupils presented current topics before their respective classes, talks being made without notes and ranging in length from ten and fifteen minutes. Subjects presented were such as "Prison Reform," "Convict Labor," "Good Roads," "The Party Platforms," "Parcels Post," etc. The work is conducted for a forty minute period each Friday.

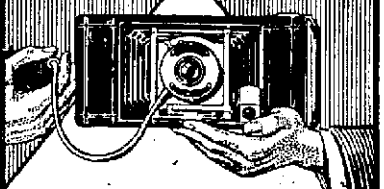

A Home Missionary sermon will be preached at the M. E. church Sunday morning. The evening services will be called at 7 o'clock. Rev. North will fill the pulpit.

William Burns and Clayton Hubbell, while returning from a visit to Janesville last evening, were stalled about five miles out of Janesville and spent the night in their machine outside of a farm house.

George Cox returned to Detroit, Mich., today.

HILDRED HEFFEL, AGED SIX, DIES OF PNEUMONIA TODAY

Evansville, Nov. 23.—Hildred Heffel, eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Heffel of this city, passed away at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Griffith, here today, after an illness of two days with pneumonia. Had she lived until Dec. 2, she would have been six years old. She was a bright, lovable child and her death has caused deep sorrow for her parents and grandparents. She also leaves two brothers and one sister. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.

The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.

There are any number of concerns in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.

Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.

But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns.

The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

MOTHER OR SWEETHEART.

DO YOU remember George Coleman? Perhaps you have forgotten the name now, but I am sure you must have read about him some time ago in your newspaper, for he is the young bank cashier of a little town in Massachusetts whom, while working for $11 a week, stole nearly half a million dollars and was sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment.

After the sentence had been passed Miss Hightower, the girl on whom he had lavished much of his money and to whom he was engaged, declared that she still loved him, and that she would visit him and write to him as often as the rules allowed and would marry him when he got out of prison.

Needless to say his mother also declared that whatever the world might think of her son she still loved him and believed in him, and would always do all she could for him during his prison term and afterwards.

In one of the yellow newspapers a picture of these two was published, and a query as to which would be true to him the longest. That question is now answered for the other day I read this item in my paper: "Miss Mamie Hightower of Kansas City, the girl who stood by George V. Coleman, the young Cambridge bank wrecker, so staunchly when he was sent to Greenfield jail two years ago, now neither writes to him nor calls on him, according to dispatches received from Greenfield." And a week or two later I read another dispatch chronicling Miss Hightower's marriage to another man.

That is what two years have done for a sweetheart's love. But the little mother is still true to her boy.

The superintendent of another big prison was telling about the prisoners' relationship with their friends in the outside world. "The wives and sweethearts are very affectionate at first," he said. "They write and visit the prison as often as the rules allow. But it doesn't usually take more than a year or two for their fervor to cool and by-and-by they don't come at all. In almost every case the only person who still waits for a man after a long term is his mother."

Don't things like that make you do some thinking about the infinite miracle of a mother's love?

I'll tell you what I thought of when I saw that item. I remembered a little story I read years ago. Once upon a time there was a man who was usually in love with very beautiful but very wicked and jealous women. This vampire declared that she would not believe he loved her more than anyone else in the world until he should bring his mother's heart to her. The criminally infatuated man finally did this, and, as he was bringing it he stumbled and fell, whereupon the mother's bleeding heart cried out, "Didst hurt thyself, son?"

There are many beautiful things in this beautiful world of ours, but do you think that in all the height and breadth of it there is anything more beautiful or wonderful than a mother's love?

The Daily Awakening

THE most common practice of our life, the thing we do regularly every twenty-four hours without cessation, is to wake to a new day. Other habits of ours may be broken in upon, their orderly routine interrupted. Our eating, our working may be changed; but rarely do we fail to wake, usually in the morning, to a new day.

How do we face that day? Sometimes with pleasant anticipations. Sometimes with worry and dread. Sometimes with ennui and disgust. But almost always, it is the actual day ahead, with its duties or pleasures, that we think upon.

But ~~there is~~ should be, another daily awakening. And this is the awakening of our spirit. With the dawning of the morning, our body wakes up. We open our eyes. And we think upon what faces us. But how rarely does our spirit wake up. How seldom does that look at the day ahead of it and what the day may bring it.

And yet if our spirit would wake daily and view with spiritual eye its possessions and powers, the day of the body would go more happily.

If we would awaken daily to the knowledge that life is eternal, and that this life is in us, would we not take hold with surer grasp of the things of the world that wait? If we felt this eternal life, this abundant life, this life that flows harmoniously through all the universe throbbing in us, would we not feel more capable of handling whatever this little, infinitesimal day might bring?

If we would awaken daily to a realization that the motive power of the universe is love, that love is the "I AM, before Abraham was," and that this power is in us and enfolds us, would we not go about the duties of the day in a spirit that would smooth out many of their tangles, and put joy where was only monotony and grayness?

If we would awaken daily to the knowledge that work is the medium by which we express ourselves, what joy we will find in the tasks that await. For who wants to be a deaf-mute in the world of action? Who does not want to put forth some visible expression of himself? And however can he do this except through his work?

But how many wonderful things can we not awake to daily, if we will just rouse that spirit of ours and give it a little time to see what it faces? Our body wakes and we lie in bed a few minutes in the morning and think of the material world waiting and what we must do therein. But let the spirit wake also and take a few minutes to realize its world and the possibilities and powers therein.

For our spirit is the visible outshowing of the infinite, taking a personality and consciousness that is itself; and that knowledge is in itself a joy. And what wonderful things cannot this portion of infinite spirit that is ourselves awake to and do, if we will just rouse it? But instead, many of us, as we lie and face the day, give all our time and thought to the cooking, or the dressmaking, or the visiting, or the selling of wares that awaits. And the good within, that would make all this go easily and happily, sleeps on. We miss the chief source of our best motive power when we fail to wake our spirit daily.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been married three years and my husband is not as kind as he formerly was. I was quite ill the other night and he acted real hateful when I called upon him for assistance. When I reminded him that I had always been willing to render him my assistance when he was ill, he said, "I would not allow you to do anything for me again if I was dying."

He gave me the customary kiss before leaving for work the following morning.

When I speak of going home to mother he tells me I can go if I want to, but he is not asking me to do so.

He caused me a great deal of embarrassment by refusing to take me to a place of amusement one night, in the presence of his stenographer, and told me that if I wanted to go I could go by myself. Was that right? His stenographer does not address him as Mr. but calls him by his last name. Don't you think that rather familiar? Every night after leaving his business he waits for her outside the store and tells her "good night. Ought he to wait for her?"

Every time we quarrel he remains obstinate and if I cried all night he would not attempt to pacify me. Kindly advise me.—BEATRICE.

Learn how to laugh off things, and to show indifference whether you feel it or not. I suspect that you have shown your feelings too much. A man soon gets tired of that. Be good-natured, keep healthy, forget a whole lot of things that isn't necessary to remember, and you'll be happier—your husband will be, too.

The stenographer cannot have much regard for him or she would not address him in that manner. Take your husband at his word and have a good time without him—but be pleasant about it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1) At times I go with a bunch of girls and at other times with one girl. The only reason I know why this girl will not go with the bunch of girls is that at a football game they would not speak to her or even let on that they saw her. They said it was because she went with a certain girl about whom there is a great deal of talk. But there is no talk about this one girl that I know of. (What do you think?)

(2) Is it proper for a girl to speak to a boy to whom she has never had an introduction but they have met each other for the past year?

(3) Is my writing and grammar very poor? Everyone tells me it is—that is, my parents and some of my teachers. READER.

(1) If there is nothing wrong about one girl, the other girls who cut her did, a very cruel thing. Can't you talk with her, in a friendly way, and ask her not to be seen about so much with the undesirable girl?

(2) I should think so. (3) Try to make them a little better, my dear.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am going to have a masquerade party. (1) What are some nice games to play? (2) What would be nice to serve? (3) I know a fellow whom I like very much. At first when I knew him he acted very nice to me, but lately he is treating me in a cool way. He is going to be at my party. How should I act toward him? BEATRICE.

(1) Get a book of games at any book or stationery store. I have not sufficient space to describe games. (2) Several kinds of sandwiches, meat salad and sweet pumpkin pie and hot chocolate. (3) Treat him just like the rest of your friends.

There is no cure, but rather a remedy. For things that are not to be remedied. They are as sick that surfeit with too much. As they that starve with nothing.

MORE ABOUT CHESTNUTS. In roasting chestnuts before the fire, the small end should always be first, that they do not burst open too violently. A corn popper is a convenient method. Shake them over the coals until they pop open.

Chestnuts and Ham.—Alternate layers of thinly sliced cooked ham and mashed chestnuts in a baking dish. Season with sage or marjoram and bits of butter. Finish with the chestnuts on top. Bake until brown.

Mashed chestnuts as a vegetable may be served with sausage, making a most delightful combination.

Chestnuts with apples and celery, the Waldorf variety, makes a nice combination for a salad. The nuts must be either cooked or blanched and sliced.

Chestnut Pancakes.—Beat separately the yolks and whites of three eggs, add three-fourths of a cup of cream, a tablespoonful each of sugar and butter, with sufficient flour to make a batter. Drop on a hot griddle and when baked well on both sides spread with chopped and seasoned chestnuts. Sprinkle with sugar and roll up.

Chestnut Pudding.—Blanch a pint of chestnuts, halve and cook them an hour in a cup of milk, letting them simmer until soft. Press through a sieve. Add a half cup of sugar, a little salt, vanilla and a pinch of nutmeg. Beat three eggs, separating the yolks from the whites; add the yolks to the chestnut pulp, stir well, then fold in the beaten whites. Pour into a buttered pudding dish and bake fifteen minutes. Serve hot or cold, with cream or custard.

Celery, chestnuts and other nuts with mayonnaise and served on lettuce makes a wholesome salad.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN, Food Specialist

SEDENTARY LIFE MAKES SIMPLE DIET A NECESSITY.

"The prevalence of disease and physical degeneracy has forced upon us the necessity of studying the nutritive values and wholesomeness of foods," says Dr. D. H. Kress, "but the results of the reform dietary have not always been satisfactory. The injurious effects of unnatural eating were far less pronounced when man was compelled to live more out of doors and to take more exercise. Now when so many live the sedentary life and when the injurious effects of the strain of business and social cares is so great, proper diet becomes a necessity, and the first step must be to understand its importance and to make a systematic study of the subject. These hints aim to furnish the most important facts and principles in popular form."

One piece frock of velveteen in the modish shades of taupe and brown are popular for hard usage, though some women find them too warm for wear under coats. The grapefruit can be separated and covered in a bowl in the refrigerator; it is just as good, and in a covered roaster, many think even better. Make cranberry jelly, wash celery and lettuce and wrap in a cloth or in a pail in cool place; peel, cook and mash potatoes, ready the next day to add hot milk, butter and salt and one or two eggs, well beaten. Turn into a frittered baking pan and bake in a quick oven twenty minutes or until light and brown. Peel the oranges for salad, ready for slicing. Make the pumpkin pie, the pastry having been made the day previous.

Use the canned pumpkin, as it is just as good as the fresh and is improved by what is called "ripening." With the apples shining and grapes washed and dried, there is little to do at the last but set the table and assemble the dinner, which will taste all the better for mother not spending most of the day cooking it when it is your pleasure and hers to be thankful together.

PUMPKIN PIE.

Materials—Canned pumpkin, one pint; milk, one pint; eggs, two; sugar, three-quarter cup; salt, one teaspoonful; cinnamon, one teaspoonful; ginger, one-half teaspoonful; cloves, one-quarter teaspoonful.

Utensils—Rolling pin, pastry board, flour sifter, sharp knife, colander, egg beater, stew pan, measuring cup, measuring spoon, pie pans.

To the pint of pumpkin, add the given ingredients, beating the eggs well. Two or three tablespoonfuls of cream are a great addition. Make plain pastry, fill with the pumpkin mixture and bake in a moderate oven until done, about forty-five minutes.

Perforated pie pans are the best for all pies, as they prevent a soft bottom crust.

Seasonable Fruits and Vegetables. Fruits—Cranberries, apples (Oregon, greenings, baldwins and kings), grapefruit, grapes (Malagas, Tokay and English not house), lemons, oranges, pears.

Vegetables—Beets, cabbage, white and red, cauliflower, celery, horseradish, lettuce, leeks, onions, parsley, parsnips, red and green peppers, potatoes, white and sweet, salsify, squash, turnips.

Extras—Artichokes, pomegranates, wax beans, brussels sprouts, cucumbers, endive, mushrooms, radishes, spinach, tomato.

Fads and Fashion

New York, Nov. 23.—The fashion in the plain and inexpensive one-piece frocks for practical use has changed but little since last season. Designers have seemingly feared to experiment with drapery at all and left us the familiar straight little frocks buttoned up the front and loosely girdled at the waist.

This winter the sleeves are long where last winter they were, in most cases, short. This winter there is a little more skirt fullness eased into the waistband, but on the whole there is but little radical change.

In some cases clever collar details give a note of novelty. In others there is an original sleeve and, here and there, one finds a skirt that, while simple enough for the sort of frock under consideration, is definitely of this season. It is impossible to give a mere hint of movement to a skirt without making it bunched or detracting from its general effect of limp length, but it is difficult and the failures to attain grace in this particular are far more numerous than the successes.

Dark blue serge is at its best in combination with black satin, and the French designers recognize this fact and have bestirred themselves to invent new and attractive ways of applying and relieving black satin. The fashion adopted last season of making the upper part of the bodice and sleeves entirely of the satin still prevails and frequently one sees long sleeves of the satin set into a serge bodice, the kimono sleeves perhaps running into the bodice far enough to suggest a tiny jacket line. A waistcoat of the satin, or perhaps only satin collar, cuffs, buttons and girdle, may trim the bodice and the satin may be used more liberally on the skirt.

The one piece frock of black, dark blue or taupe charmeuse has become so epidemic in the cheap grades of ready frocks that one must choose such a frock carefully indeed if it is to look hopelessly commonplace. A quality of charmeuse naturally makes much difference and care in regard to finish will help to set the good aside from the shoddy, but it is upon some clever detail that the distinction of such a frock is likely to rest.

One piece frocks of velveteen in the modish shades of taupe and brown are popular for hard usage, though some women find them too warm for wear under coats. HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Home Cured Ham.

As butchering time is near at hand, I will give the readers of the News my recipe for sugar-curing meat, which I have used the past 15 years and never had a piece spoil.

For 1,000 pounds of meat: Fifteen quarts salt. Three pounds brown sugar. One pound ground pepper. One pound saltpeter. Mix thoroughly.

After butchering, lay hams and shoulders on a board in cellar until next day, when all the animal heat is out. Rub meat thoroughly with the mixture on the rind side as well as the flesh, being careful to rub well the end and about the bone.

Let lie in the cellar 14 days, when it is ready to smoke.

Hoping this may be of some help to those who are fond of country-cured ham.

The Table.

SCALLOPED OYSTERS—Two or three friends telephoned me lately to find how I made my scalloped oysters, which are delicious. Maybe The News readers would like to know. Melting the butter and mixing with crackers first, so butter is evenly divided, is the secret of good scallops.

connection with the chiffon, and this detail is the keynote to the successes of some of the new models, but is blouse likely to be found upon the French costume than upon the separate blouse, though there are some charming fur-trimmed examples of the latter. These are often in white with touches of dark fur but the models are copied in color to match costumes and are often quite effective in that way.

Some practical little blouses for hard service wear have dark chiffon covering the entire white foundation and are relieved only by smart removable collars and cuffs. A blouse of this sort is invaluable because it is so much more easily kept fresh than one with a white yoke, cuffs, etc., and in a good quality of chiffon cloth it will give excellent service.

Certain evening gowns show very striking magpie effects, the whole of the corsage and the upper half of the skirt being covered closely with a coat of mail embroidery in clear crystal, while the lower part is one mass of glittering jet. Long chains of very fine jet are arranged in the form of bretelles, while from the shoulders scarf draperies of fine black shadow lace fall upon the skirt. These long draperies in fine white Alençon lace, falling softly from the shoulders, are to be seen on some dainty scarves of beautiful real lace to the greatest advantage.

Fabrics now seem to be almost barbaric in the gorgeous brilliancy of their effect, while they are, nevertheless, surprisingly soft and supple in

If I want scalloped oysters for dinner I prepare in the morning all but adding the cream, which is put on just before going to the oven. The longer oysters stand in buttered crackers the better.

Take one quart oysters, three cups cracker crumbs, one-half cup melted butter, 1½ teaspoons salt, one-fourth teaspoon white pepper and dash cayenne, one-half cup cream.

Wash and drain oysters. Pour butter over crackers and toss with fork till evenly buttered, add salt and pepper. Cover bottom of baking dish with thin layer of crumbs, put in half of oysters, cover with half of remaining crumbs, add rest of oysters and cover with rest of crumbs. Make deep holes in scallop, pour in cream. Bake in quick oven till crumbs are brown and liquid boiling. Never cook more than two layers of oysters in a pan, as upper and lower layers will be overcooked before the middle one is cooked.

Thanksgiving Plum Pudding—Four cups flour, one-half cup brown sugar, two cups chopped suet, two cups currants, one cup raisins. Just enough water to stir up. Place in cloth bag in kettle of boiling water and boil four hours. Serve with whipped cream. This is enough for 14 people. For smaller family use half of recipe and boil two hours.

Their colors are bright and vivid and yet rich and deep, and there are new developments everywhere in the way of shape and form.

Exceedingly smart are the evening coats, arranged with the upper part and sleeves in one material, and the lower half in some contrasting color and fabric. They are most becoming, naturally, to those who are tall and slim.

Violet seems to be the smartest color at the moment in sweaters. Violet wool, handknitted sweaters of light weight, have crocheted collars and cuffs of white chenille and are very becoming.

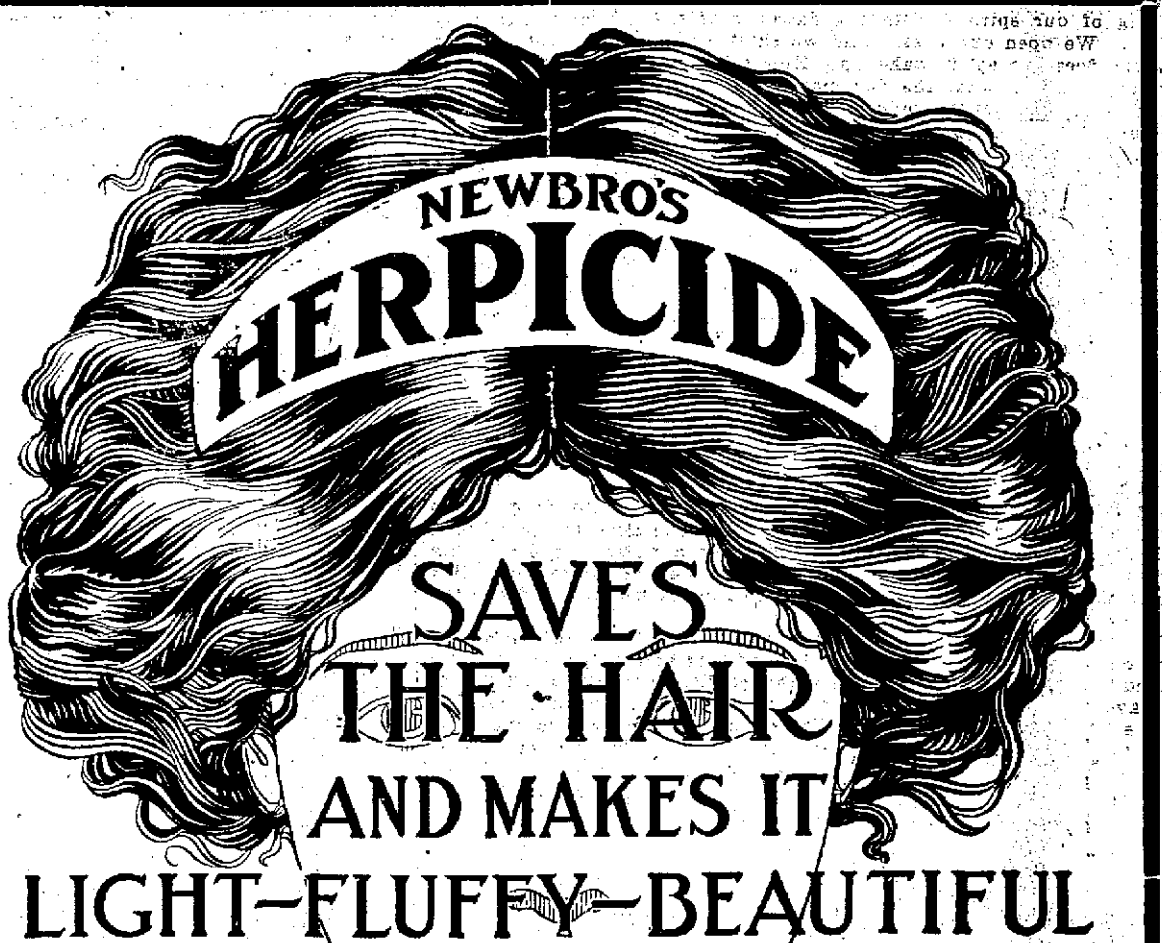

Bead chains, ranging from the superb rope of pearls to the amber, jet and crystal necklaces, are festooned around the throat and add their beauty to the toilette. The short string of pearls is as fashionable as ever, and bead trimmings are enjoying a very prominent place.

Many of the smartest evening gowns are trimmed with bead plaques. The beads are so closely set together that there is no space between them. They are wrought upon canvas in the old-fashioned mat and screen designs. These show baskets of flowers and birds, unreal looking in their strange coloring.

The peasant fashions are much in vogue, and the suspenders are decorated with beads and embroidery.

The most beautiful bead trimmings are those that represent the arabesque designs on black chiffon, crepe de chine, net or taffeta.

SKIN ERUPTION CAME ON CHEEK

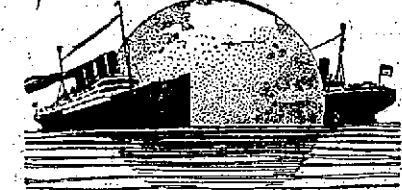

Started in Pimples. Nearly All One Cheek Solid Sore. Very Fretful. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Face All Healed Up.

Kingsley, Mich.—"Last May my thirteen months' old baby had a sore come on her cheek. It started in four or five small pimples and in two or three hours' time spread to the size of a silver dollar. It spread to her eyes. Then water would run from the pimples and wherever that touched it caused more sores until nearly all one cheek and up her nostrils were one solid sore. She was very fretful. She certainly was a terrible looking child, and nothing seemed to be of any use. Then I got some Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. She tried to rub off everything we put on so that we would sit and hold her hands for two hours at a time, trying to give the medicine a chance to help her, but after I washed it with Cuticura Soap and then put on the Cuticura Ointment they seemed to soothe her and she did not try to rub them off. It was only a few days before her face was all healed up, and there has been no return of the trouble since. We thought that baby's face would surely be scarred, but it is not." (Signed) Mrs. W. J. MRS. SARAH GREEN DIES FROM STROKE

Never Recovered Speech After Being Stricken With Paralysis—Early Settler.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milton, Nov. 23.—Mrs. Sarah Green, who suffered a stroke of paralysis some weeks ago, died yesterday morning, not recovering her speech since the stroke. Deceased came to this country from England, her native land, in 1848, removing to Milton in the early fifties. She was in her eighty-ninth year and prior to her last illness was able to be about town and her walk and carriage was as sprightly and erect as many women of half her age.

Deceased during her long residence here and gained the respect and esteem of everyone and was noted as an energetic hard working woman, and a good neighbor. She leaves a daughter, Miss Mary Rumsby, and a son, Samuel Green, to mourn her loss. The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon from the M. E. church, Rev. M. A. Drew officiating.

Municipal Affairs Of Vital Interest

KANSAS CITY ROCK QUARRY IS SUCCESS

Entire Expense of Maintenance $1,500—Gave Employment to 2,500 Men During Winter.

Kansas City's municipal quarry has been a great success in every respect according to Jacob Ellington, chief of the city Board of Public Welfare, writing in the American City. He writes as follows:

"One of the most important causes underlying poverty is unemployment. The records of charitable societies show that from 25 per cent to 30 per cent of those who apply to them for relief every year have been brought to their destitute condition largely through lack of work."

"By means of our municipal rock quarry we gave employment during the last winter to about 2,500 for a period ranging from one day to a month—until such time as they were able to find permanent jobs, either through their own efforts or the instrumentality of our free employment bureau, another one of our activities. For every public yard of crushed rock the individual received 60 cents, enabling him to earn from a dollar to two dollars a day. These laborers represented nearly every type of the unemployed, skilled and unskilled, including even some of the professions. As an indication of their willingness to work, many of the men arrived at the quarry as early as 5:00 a. m. It is interesting to note that two armed men were the champion rock-breakers, one of them breaking three and one-half cubic yards, and earning $2.10 in one day."

"The total expenditure to the maintenance of the rock quarry amounted to about $15,000, whereas the board realized about $12,500 out of the sale of our rock to the street railway company and to the Board of Public Works. Considering the fact that the stone broken by hand was sold in competition with some broken by machine, it is significant that the entire expense to the community of maintaining this important activity was only $1,500. We have the assurance of our chief of police that as a result of our policy for caring for the unemployed we had less crime last winter than any previous winter."

STERLING HAS RECEIVED AUTOMOBILE FIRE TRUCK

Sterling, Illinois, Has Received the New Fire Truck Which It Ordered Several Months Ago.

The new truck, the work of the American-La France Fire Apparatus company, is one of the finest pieces of automobile workmanship and fire apparatus construction ever seen in that part of the state. Seventy-horse power, a speed of sixty miles an hour is guaranteed. The machine has a wheel base of 140 inches and weighs, complete, 8,000 pounds.

The equipment is complete, including a forty-gallon chemical tank and 200 feet of chemical hose. There are also four acid receptacles, two three gallon Babcock extinguishers, etc. The other fire fighting equipment consists of one twenty foot extension ladder, one twelve foot roof ladder, four lanterns, one axe, one pike pole, one saw. There is also a twenty-eight gallon gasoline tank, two eight inch acetylene lamps with reflectors and one nine inch swivel searchlight. The noise making department is filled by one locomotive bell and one siren horn.

The lines along which the machine is built are ornamental as well as practical. The machine is built close to the ground, giving little opportunity for skidding. The Dayton, Ohio, used the artillery type being used in the rear. The machine is painted a flashing red, lettered in black and gold, with the monogram "S. F. D." in blue and gold letters on a dark background.

IMPROVEMENT OF YAHARA IS THREE FOURTHS DONE

(Madison State Journal.)

According to W. W. Warner about three-quarters of the work of improving the Yahara river between Lakes Monona and Waubesa has been done. Practically all the dredging part of the undertaking is now completed and the big dredger is now engaged on the Nine Springs project at its intersection with the Yahara canal and river. The remainder of the excavation will be deferred until next spring and be done with the hydraulic pump, which is to be installed on the large Banzer Maru this winter. Work on the concrete lock is being rushed under direction of John Icke and will be completed if the present fine weather continues for some time.

The new Madison street cars will begin to arrive within a week or two, according to Dudley Montgomery of the Southern Wisconsin railway company. President W. W. Montgomery of the company went to St. Louis to inspect the accept the first of the cars, and they will be shipped in a few days. They will be of the same size as the present equipment, but will be of the pay-as-you-enter variety.

SUMTER, SOUTH CAROLINA ADVERTISING FOR MAYOR

The following is part of an advertisement unprecedented in America—which made its appearance during the latter part of October.

The city of Sumter, S. C., hereby announces that applications will be received from now till Dec. 1, for the office of city manager of Sumter.

This is a rapidly growing manufacturing city of 10,000 population, and the applicant should be competent to oversee public works, such as paving, lighting, water supply, etc.

An engineer of standing and ability would be preferred.

The city manager will hold office as long as he gives satisfaction to the commission. He will have complete administrative control of the city, subject to the approval of the board of three elected commissioners.

There will be no politics in the job; the work will be purely that of an expert.

SUPERIOR PROVIDES SKATING RINKS FOR EACH CITY WARD

Superior, Wis.—The city commission will follow the rule established by former administrations in giving attention to the enjoyment of the "future voters" and accordingly free ice rinks will again be established this year.

The ward foremen will be ordered to bank the sites preparatory to the first spell of cold weather so that the lots will only have to be flooded.

There will be one rink in each ward and these will be looked after by the ward foremen. Arrangements will be made with the water company as to the time the rinks shall be flooded so as not to conflict with or decrease the pressure in case of fire. Last year the rinks were well patronized and although some complaints of the rough tactics of the older boys were received, the season was successful.

CITY OF APPLETON WILL ELIMINATE CONTRACTORS

Appleton, Wis.—The city of Appleton is going into the contracting business. The city commissioners, having discovered they can hire men by the day and put down payments cheaper than they can get the work done by letting it out to contractors, will do this work under their supervision and responsibility. During the summer of 1912 the city commission saved nearly $3,000 on three small pavement jobs by doing the work by day labor instead of letting it out by contract.

SHEBOYGAN GAS COMPANY WILL MAKE EXTENSIONS

The Sheboygan Gas Light Company is preparing plans for extensions of its gas plant in the spring that will increase the capacity 100,000 cubic feet of gas per day. Two new "benches" or gas producers will be installed in addition to three now in use. These benches contain six retorts each and are 50,000 cubic feet capacity per twenty-four hours each. The new benches will be of the same size and general design as those now in use.

WILL ENFORCE CURFEW ORDINANCE IN MADISON

No more will the streets ring with the merry voices of children playing out of doors after night has cast her dark shadow over the city.

The stern hand of the police set in motion by the order of Mayor Heim has determined to rigidly enforce the curfew law and any children under 14 found on the streets after eight o'clock will be taken in charge and brought into court.—State Journal.

PHILADELPHIA CITY HALL MAY HAVE ROOF GARDEN

Philadelphia.—If the plans of Mayor Blankenburg are carried out the roof of the city hall will be utilized as a garden for the free use of the public. A glass awning is planned for stormy weather. There will be musical concerts by the Philadelphia orchestra and the Municipal band.

The project was first suggested to the mayor by the city's Civil Service Commissioner Ritter. The entire cost will be defrayed out of the annual appropriation to the mayor's office so that the council's consent will not be required for the project. The scheme for the refreshment privilege is still to be decided.

Steam is Cheaper.

The Rhinelander common council at its meeting last Thursday evening voted to have the electric fixtures removed from the water pumping station and to have water pumped hereafter by steam power. The council had had tests made for several months and decided that steam power is cheaper.

Sixteen Mill Tax.

Sixteen mills will be the tax rate in Madison if the council adopts the budget as it will be recommended by the finance committee. At this rate there will be raised approximately $238,000 by direct taxation. Provision is made to pay off $37,000 on the city's deficit.

To Build Garbage Incinerator.

The contract for the new garbage incinerator, which will be built for the city by James Corse & Co., at a cost of $21,000, was signed up this evening. Work will begin immediately on the plant which will be situated near the St. Paul railroad roundhouse.—Racine Times.

New Street Lights.

Kankana has recently received a shipment of 200 candle power tungsten lamps which are to be installed for street lighting in place of the usual arc lamps.

Proposes Rest Room.

A cozy rest room in the city hall for the use of tired women shoppers is an innovation which Mayor Heim of Madison plans to have the council act upon some time this winter.

AFTON

Afton, Nov. 23.—Next Sunday Nov. 24, at the Baptist church here, the Rev. Bosworth's daughter of Beloit, who has been a missionary in China for the last nineteen years, will give a very interesting talk on her work in that place.

Miss Rena Engleke, who has been quite ill for the past week, at her home, is improving.

Miss Selma Hammel returned home last night after spending two weeks with relatives in Milwaukee.

The R. N. A., who gave a dancing party in Brinkman's Hall last night, met with success. A large number was in attendance. All departed for home at two o'clock a. m. after having spent a most enjoyable time.

James Oakley's hand that was injured in a corn shredder a while ago is improving.

Ronald Aitris of Janesville, and a lady friend attended the R. N. A. dance at Afton last night.

Mrs. M. Oakley and Miss Maune Innan spent Tuesday at John Innan's.

James Seales, Jr., expects to return to work in Milwaukee, Sunday. Miss Cora Richter is visiting her brother and relatives in Chicago for a few weeks.

Monticello, Nov. 23.—Mrs. Rosa Zinecky spent Tuesday in Monroe. Mrs. Abraham Kubly, was a Monroe visitor Tuesday.

Chas. Einbeck, of Monroe, had business in town, Monday.

Dr. R. R. Hanke, went to New Glarus, Monday evening, for a short visit with Dr. C. A. Hefly.

J. B. Purcell, John Moetz and Emil Elmer had business in Monroe recently.

Spencer Lynn returned to Brodhead Monday morning.

Miss Ethel Dagenhart, of Branevet, is a guest at the home of Mrs. C. E. Odekir.

Albert Wittwer of New Glarus, called on friends here, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Loertscher, returned Monday from an auto trip to the vicinity of Albany.

Mrs. George Steinman and son, Gordon are spending the week with Madison relatives.

Miss Loraine Figt spent the day, Monday in Monroe.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Voegel and son Thomas, of Monroe, spent Wednesday at the home of Nick Theitig and family.

The Messrs Emma and Lydia Schlittler, departed Tuesday morning for Ridgeway, where they will be the guests of their aunt, Mrs. Andrew Legler.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Kundert, of New Glarus, were calling on Monticello friends Tuesday.

Mrs. H. J. Elmer and daughter, Miss Sylvia returned to their home Monday, after a short visit at the George Meythaler home.

Miss Nellie Pierce, who has long been an esteemed member of the W. R. C. was most agreeably surprised at the last regular meeting, when she was favored with a shower in honor of her approaching marriage to Stillman Hunly. Miss Pierce was the recipient of many pretty and useful gifts.

What He Did.

"What have you ever done for me?" complained the young man whose father had chided him for his inability to get ahead. "Well, I kept your mother from naming you Percy or Clarence."

SIDEWALK KETCHES.

WHY WHO'S WHO.
(By Howard L. Rann.)

IT is a rare thing nowadays to find a baseball player who surrenders to anything but old age. They usually retire full of years, loaded with honors and Charley horses, after which they open a saloon and hold a post mortem over the conflicts of past days. A startling exception to this rule is the Rev. William A. Sunday, who prefers to be introduced as a "baller."

William used to play the outfield for a living. He was a graceful fielder, with Chipperfield legs and lean, eager fingers which seldom pulled off any historic muffs. Whenever the manager wanted somebody to run the bases and get back the same day, he would pick out William and urge him on with some double-yoked profanity.

It was an inspiring spirit to see William execute a long, spiral slide for third base with the aid of his stomach.

A number of years ago William retired from base ball in order to become an overworked and underpaid evangelist. There is a good deal of skepticism about William's pay check, in certain ungodly quarters, but there is no question about his industry. He works nine months in the year, and then takes three months to put new elastic in his vocal chords and think up a few original definitions of the bottomless pit.

Some of these definitions have a very soothing effect upon people who have arranged to go the other way.

William does not use any pink tea methods in his work. He is equipped by nature with a set of eloquent hands and feet, with which he punctuates his remarks. When William is about to get rid of a remark which ought to be good for the first page, he will seize it firmly about the neck and throw it at the audience from the top of a four-legged table. When a man has been hit by a few of these addressed remarks, delivered by a human catapult in shirt sleeves, he will make up his mind to come in and be good.

Some critics object to William's vocabulary, which is provided with a full set of teeth and at times sounds like a vocal rip saw, but they lose sight of his expurgated sermons, which are masterpieces of word paintings. William makes people mad, but the madder they get the faster they come, and William says that is what we are here for.

Chinese Advertising.

In their native land Chinese have their own peculiar way of advertising. The biscuits bear the imprint of the baker, and ducks brought in the Celestial markets frequently show on their backs a big red stamp bearing the name of the seller.

RESULTS THAT REMAIN

Are Appreciated by Janesville People.

Thousands who suffer from backache and kidney complaint have tried only remedy after another, finding only temporary benefit. This is discouraging, but there is one kidney medicine that has earned a reputation for lasting results and there is plenty of proof of its merit right here in Janesville.

Here is the testimony of one who used Doan's Kidney Pills years ago, and now makes her testimony even stronger.

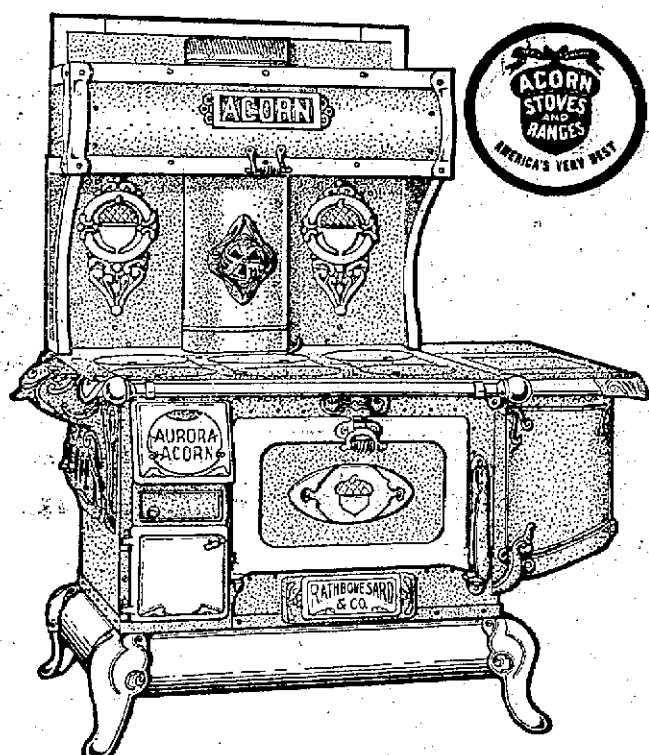

Mrs. Joseph Gower, 302 Eastern Ave., Janesville, Wis., says: "The benefit I had from Doan's Kidney Pills when I used them some years ago has been permanent. I willingly confirm my former endorsement of this remedy. I was afflicted with kidney complaint for several weeks and was feeling miserable in every way when a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I got a supply at the People's Drug Co. and the contents of three boxes rid me of my trouble. I never fail to advise a trial of Doan's Kidney Pills when I hear anyone complaining of weak kidneys."

Buy An Aurora Acorn And Be Satisfied.

THE AURORA ACORN HAS A RUST RESISTING IRON BODY.

The sheet metal in the Aurora Acorn is not steel but a new material, made specially for us, in which the impurities that cause the corrosion of steel are eliminated.

Scientific tests prove that this material will last several times as long as ordinary steel on account of its remarkable resistance to corrosion.

There is no other sheet metal made either in steel or so-called charcoal irons that equals it for durability.

ELECTRIC WELDED BODY

The Aurora Acorn has a one-piece body. The body parts are welded by electricity into a complete unit. Every seam is perfectly tight and they remain tight always. This construction makes a much smoother, neater appearance than the riveted type and is much more satisfactory and durable.

D. W. WATT Tells of Early Work of Keith, The Theatre Man

In eighteen hundred and eighty two which was my first year with the Forepaugh show, there were many privileges let to different outsiders, one being let to a man by the name of Andy Keith. This was what was called a lung tester. Mr. Keith had an assistant in a young man not yet out of his teens by the name of Eddie Albee.

This machine was placed in the side show and Mr. Keith had charge of it and collected the money, and Eddie Albee would gather in the people and the fee for testing lungs was five cents. This machine was supposed to indicate whether you had strong lungs or not.

Keith did a flourishing business all summer, but the museum became too busy for Andy's head and he was bound at the close of the show to go to Boston and open up a dime museum. Many times during the summer he would come into the ticket wagon and talk to me about going with him to Boston and opening a museum.

There were only one or two museums in Boston and those were small ones and Mr. Keith thought it the finest opening in the country. For a time I thought well of the undertaking, but when the closing day of the show came, I thought as I had a good position where I was that I might better keep it.

I said to Mr. Keith that by the time we would get a building in a good location in Boston I was afraid that our money would be gone. So I concluded not to go. But Mr. Keith was bound to go in the museum business and at the close of the show at Chattanooga, Tenn., on Nov. 15th, Keith and his young assistant packed their belongings and started for Boston.

In a few days after arriving there he had leased a building and was advertising for freaks and privileges of all kinds, that went in those days to make up a museum. And his venture proved a bonanza from the start. This place made money faster than Mr. Keith had ever expected and it was not long after that he leased another building and opened another museum.

This also was a money maker and in a few years Mr. Keith had amassed quite a fortune and his next move was to buy ground and build one of the finest theatres ever built in this country.

Through all these years the boy Eddie Albee, who was his assistant when he had the lung tester in the side show was his general manager. The entrance to this beautiful theatre was a block away from the theatre proper. This vast entrance which was commenced a block away was all finished in marble and decorated with beautiful plants and statuary.

For many years visitors from all parts of the world who visited Boston never failed to see Keith's new theatre, for it was one of the finest sites in Boston. And this house like the small museums, was also a great money getter. In a short time Mr. Keith was looking for sites in other cities.

His next move, I think, was to get control of a theatre in New York and might interest you.

If I make no mistake he owns and controls three theatres in New York today, one in Philadelphia, one in Baltimore and only a few years ago he built a beautiful play house in Providence, Rhode Island. And through all these years of success, Eddie Albee was his right hand man. On the opening night of the new theatre in Providence, Rhode Island, Mr. Keith presented it to Eddie Albee for his long and faithful service, saying much of it was due to his keen interest.

Mr. Keith is advanced, some in years now, but he has a grown up son who was brought up in the business, and with other people interested in different play houses, he now owns a beautiful home in Boston and has a private yacht and much of his time is now spent on the water.

He is said to be worth millions and it was just 30 years ago this fall that he first launched into business for himself and the foundation for his great fortune was started in the side show of the Forepaugh show with his lung tester.

Andy Keith should certainly be well pleased with the outcome of his show career which was started in such a small way.

In eighteen and seventy-nine while we were touring the northern part of this state with the Burr Robbins show, which at that time was a wagon show, we encountered a great deal of rainy weather, which naturally made the show grounds soft and it was only with the utmost care on many show grounds that it was possible to put up the tents so they would be safe when they were crowded with people.

At Columbus, Wisconsin, just before the close of the afternoon performance, all the seats on one side of the canvas fell, hurting many people more or less, but not many of them seriously, and if ever I experienced a dark hour in the show business this was the one. But living in or near Columbus was Fernando Bradley, an old time friend and Mr. Bradley knew if the canvas ever was a time when I needed help it was then.

He came to my assistance and worked with me, assisting me as no one else could and helped me in every way possible to make settlements with the people and not only stayed there till everything was settled up in Columbus, but went on through with me to the next town in case something might turn up there which he might be able to help me out with.

Mr. Bradley died several years ago, but has a son who with his family live in this city on Milton avenue. And from that time on, I always had a warm spot in my heart for Mr. Bradley who worked with me day and night and gave me the kind of assistance which I needed so much. I met him several times after that and we would always rehearse our experience at Columbus, Wisconsin, when the seats fell down in the show.

But as the old saying goes, "You can't grind with the water that's past" and while these have all passed and gone, I thought perhaps they might interest you.

PERSONAL POLITICS RULED IN ELECTION

RETURNS MAKE IT DIFFICULT TO PROVE ANY THEORIES PROPOUNDED.

BUSINESS REASSURED

Wall Street Not Unduly Concerned Over Outcome of Special Session—Business Continues Good.

By Ellis B. Usher.
Milwaukee, Nov. 22.—The more the election figures are studied, the more difficult it is to prove up any line of party theories and the more apparent are personal politics. It is more and more clear that the political mixup which Wisconsin experienced is typical of many other states. For example, the close analysis of the vote on president and governor in Wisconsin shows that the democratic party of 1898 practically disappeared and that Kansas got a host of republicans and McGovern and Roosevelt (not Wilson) a host of democrats. In the shuffle it is a happy outcome that Wilson finds himself with an unquestionably democratic congress. There can be no division of national responsibility after March 4. It is interesting to find the Wall Street Journal saying:

Wall Street Reassured.
"The rank and file of traders were concerned over the announcement of an extra session in the spring, but the large interests appeared to be pleased. It was said a number of the largest banks in Wall street had urged upon Mr. Wilson the desirability of obtaining action upon the tariff at the earliest possible moment."

And again, it is refreshing to find in the same paper a statement denying any danger that the laying of "sacriligious hands" upon the tariff will "precipitate a panic," and it corrects the oft repeated, even in the recent campaign absurd falsehood that the panic of 1893 was "a democratic panic," as follows:

"The one instance brought to support this view is that the country had a real panic in 1893. It was the combined result of the McKinley tariff of 1890 and the free coinage of silver act. The inflation theory produced was a simple explanation for every economist who ever discussed the question."

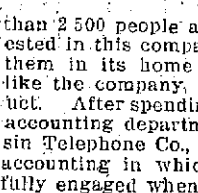

This sounds as if the financiers had learned their lesson in the "banker's panic" of 1907, and are not anxious to try on scare methods again. Such utterances coming from the inside of the Wall street circle are a sure indication that the election is over, and that business men are not to be frightened now, any more than they were before election. The statement reflects the sentiment of the general run of active men on one side.

The tone of business promises to continue good, and to keep within safe and conservative lines. In the general and broad sense the business of the year is solid and substantial and shows a proper increase.

An Advertisement.
Our local financial institutions have all developed during the year. The banking and insurance interests are keeping pace with the growth and advancement of the business of the state and of Milwaukee, the metropolis. As an illustration, Mr. John E. Reilly, secretary and treasurer of The Old Line Life Insurance Co. of America, tells me that the company's cash capital paid in, together with surplus and reserves now exceed a million, and the life insurance in force is more than $3,500,000.

More than 2,500 people are financially interested in this company, the majority of them in its home state. Mr. Reilly, like the company, is a Wisconsin product. After spending some years in the accounting department of the Wisconsin Telephone Co., he went into public accounting in which he was successfully engaged when The Old Line Life was organized. He is a good example of the men who are officers, directors, stockholders, and insurers in this company. It is a conservative institution. The business is carefully managed but without narrowness. True conservatism means true progress, and I can say, as the company's employee, that the excellent showing it makes is the result of good, safe methods, coupled with far-sighted enterprise.

Women Suffragists Explain.
Some of the women suffragists have attempted an explanation for the overwhelming defeat they sustained in the recent election but they are not correct in their analysis. A remarkable vote was polled on the suffrage question. I have not looked the matter up thoroughly but I think it safe to say that no other referendum vote was ever cast in Wisconsin at all comparable with it. When the Primary Election Law was adopted the total vote was 210,891. The income tax question was voted upon by a few more than 100,000 citizens. Other referendums and even the vote on justices of the Supreme court are small compared with the vote on the suffrage question, which was over 356,000 with a total vote on president of 391,000. Miss Wagner says the socialists went back on them, but the vote for suffrage was four times that of the socialist candidate for governor, of Milwaukee, Sheboygan, La Crosse, Superior and other large cities where the socialists made their best showing, this county was the only one where the suffragists vote was not much larger than the socialist. The suffragists made the mistake of thinking that because the anti-suffragists were not making a noise in public they were not interested, and the effect of their work went largely to stir up the opposition rather than to make converts. The anti-suffrage victory is mainly due to the quiet, home woman, who said to her husband, son, brother, and sweetheart, on election day, "Don't forget to vote 'No' on the pink ballot." The result is a good suggestion to the anti that all they need do is to quietly exert their influence. It will beat noise by over 90,000 majority, every time.

JOHN E. REILLY,
Secretary and Treasurer.

The Tax Situation.
Now that election is over and a survey of the field shows a legislature that is very much divided, and a general result that does not endorse any boy's attitude on the income tax, it is to be hoped that the general subject of taxation may be treated with something like statesmanship and seriousness. It is unfortunate that the head of the State Tax Commission demonstrated himself during the recent campaign as utterly disqualified to deal with the tax question except as a political one. I can say this without being misunderstood, for I have all along agreed that the law should be tried, not repealed. My belief is that if it is not tried out to a conclusion it will continue to be a political issue as it was this year, and I am sure such a trial will demonstrate its failure. The tax will diminish this year. The theory is wrong. People will evade. Industrial taxation. Even the national government, in time of war, made what was really a feeble showing in collecting income taxes. The question for men to consider who are not playing politics is the growing burden of all public expenses and the fact, equally incontestable, that all this burden ultimately falls on the same classes. The wealthy shift their burdens if not their annoyances and they soon find ways to minimize them. The average salaries or professional man if he earns $5000, and owns a home, pays more taxes proportionally than the millionaire. He belongs to the class, too, that feels the utmost strain of all the increase in the cost of living, especially if he raises a family. This is the class upon whom the income tax is virtually double taxation. Enforce it until it makes plain to everybody that every man must bear his own burden. The poor cannot shift it on to the rich. The more taxes the rich pay the more the poor will pay for the necessities of life. Automatic taxes like occupation and license taxes are the only ones, outside of real estate taxes, that cannot be thought-rigged. But we don't need them. Primarily we are spending too much and in too many unnecessary ways.

A Freight Advertisement.
The Erie Railroad Company's force of freight getters are hustling all over Wisconsin, just now, to wind up the season with some big cargoes for the lake and rail route via Buffalo, and everything points to a fine season's record. The Erie's business in Wisconsin is an excellent illustration of modern business enterprise, alike beneficial to Wisconsin and to this railroad. When the Erie's office was opened in this city it was the way. No other eastern line had anything like it and even now the authority of the Erie's general agent for Wisconsin, Mr. Phett, exceeds that of any freight man in the state except, perhaps, those who represent home roads. But the Erie is making a Wisconsin road of itself with its lake route, and it makes rates to export as well as to domestic shipping points, and incidentally, as your readers may suspect, it pays me for telling the people that it is trying to do for them—and itself, and it pays you for printing this.

Short Notes.
Here's one I heard in the barber shop the other day: A customer settled himself in the chair, and asked the barber—"Did you vote for Taft?" "No, answered the barber, laconically. "Well, somebody did."

The democrats decided this week that McGovern is elected. He is elected because the democrats had no party and no organization. They have a chance, now, to an organization.

There's some gossip hereabout that William F. Wolfe of La Crosse is talked of for one of the assistant attorneys-generalships in Washington, under the new democratic administration. Wisconsin had Judge J. E. Dodge there under Olney, and he was followed by Louis Pradt of Wausau. It ought to be a Wisconsin job and Mr. Wolfe's friends ought to be on the lookout.

A Chicago Sunday paper publishes a report that control of the Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Co. has passed from the Rockefeller interests to J. Ogden Armour and other western men, who, it is said, have added largely to their holdings in the last eighteen months. The Wall street Journal copies this bit of gossip in a way that leads one to wonder why it adds no comment.

Easy Explanation.
"Why, Giorgio, there is ten minutes difference between my watch and the hall clock since Sunday! Which is wrong of the two? Is my watch ten minutes too slow or the clock ten minutes too fast?" "Your watch is all right, sir," said he grimly, "because he very warm in your pocket; click stand out in cold hall, he go faster to warm himself."—The Later Letters of Edward Lear.

How Empress Punished.
"The first person I saw punished in the palace at Peking was a servant girl; she had made a mistake about her majesty's socks and had brought two which were not mates. Her majesty finding that out, ordered another servant girl to slap her face ten times on each cheek. This girl did not slap hard enough so her majesty told the one who had been slapped to slap the other. I thought that was too funny for anything and wanted to laugh the worst way, but did not dare."—Two Years in the Forbidden City, by the Princess Der Ling.

Porto Rico's New Wonder.
From far away Porto Rico come reports of a wonderful new discovery that is believed will vastly benefit the people. Ramon T. Marchan, of Barceloneta, writes, "Dr. King's New Discovery is doing splendid work here. It cured me about five times of terrible coughs and colds, also my brother of a severe cold in his chest and more than 20 others, who used it on my advice. We hope this great medicine will yet be sold in every drug store in Porto Rico." For throat and lung troubles it has no equal. A trial will convince you of its merit. 50c and $1.00. Trial—bottle free. Guaranteed by People's Drug Co.

LIGHT--HEALTH

The Radiant Energy of Electric Light is a wonderful tonic. It penetrates the tissues of the body instantaneously and generates heat in the depths of the tissues and deep layers of the skin.

The Turkish Bath removes the impurities from the skin and the thorough massage that follows the bath relaxes the muscles, and equalizes the circulation.

There is not better remedy for rheumatism, grip, colds, neuralgia, kidney trouble, liver trouble, and skin diseases. Ask your family physician about it.

DELIVERED IN STERILIZED BOTTLES

Bottling milk in sterilized bottles by a method that eliminates any possibility of contact with human hands.

KEEPS IT CLEAN

As much depends upon the proper handling of milk after it has been pasteurized as on the actual process of pasteurization. Our method of handling is complete.

The bottle is the only convenient receptacle that permits of absolute sterilization—that's why we use it.

Each bottle before being filled is thoroughly washed inside and out—then it's sterilized in a compartment filled with live steam. It is filled and hermetically sealed by automatic machinery, which absolutely prevents the milk coming in contact with the human hand or even the outside air. This is another big reason why—THERE'S HEALTH INSURANCE IN EVERY BOTTLE—CHEAPEST IN THE END.

JANESVILLE PURE MILK CO.

No. Bluff St. GRIDLEY & CRAFT. Both Phones.

Opie Reed says when he lived in the mountains of Eastern Tennessee a tall old gaunt hillman came down from across the Kentucky border one day and told him this story:

"Son," he said, "I've been having a right smart trouble lately with them dadd-fetched Hensleys boys. The whole passel of 'em live right up the creek a little piece above my place, and here lately they tuck a sort of a grudge 'gainst me. Every night when I went out to feed my stock they'd be hid in the brush fence at the lower end of my hoss-lot, and they'd shoot at me."

"I got tired of it. I'm gittin' along in years and I can't see to aim a gun the way I could once, on account of my eyesight; but I jest made up my mind the other night that I wouldn't stand it no more. I'm peaceable, but there's a limit to everything; so that night when I went out to feed my old gun along with me. Shore enough, they was ambushed in the same place, and they cut down on me jest as soon as I came into sight."

"So I upped with my gun and I sort of sprayed them bushes with a few bullets. That seemed to quiet 'em down, and I went on with my feedin'; but in about an hour I felt sort of curious and I walked down to that there brush fence and taken a look. And, son, all them Hensleys was gone but three!"

Herbert Corey, the champion long-distance anecdote teller of the world, says that where he came from, in Ohio, there a stranded hungry race-track gambler who struck town and found the friend of his boyhood running a short-order restaurant. The restaurant man made his old comrade welcome and at first fed him copiously, but after a week or so grew weary of so unprofitable a guest and decided to give the wayfarer a gentle hint.

So he instructed the waiters to give him only liver to eat—liver being the cheapest thing on the bill-of-fare. The race-track man had liver for breakfast, dinner and supper—just liver, and nothing but liver. He lived on liver nine days; then, on the morning of the tenth, he found a twenty-dollar bill on the street.

He made hotfoot for the most pretentious cafe in the place. The menu was printed in French. He beckoned the waiter to him.

"Have you got liver here?" he asked.

"This is liver," said the waiter, pointing to a line on the card.

The gambler laid a thumb over it firmly.

"Now then," he said, "bring me ten dollars' worth each day from liver!"

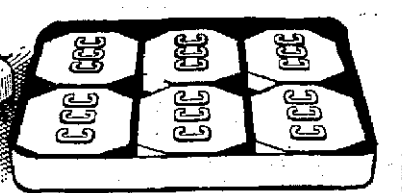

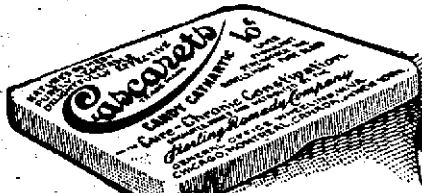

The Danger.
"It may seem a trifling matter," says a writer in the Observer, "but I think that the man who wears his gloves seems to be smarter than the man who carries his gloves in his hands." Surely it is no trifling matter. One might meet the Observer writer any day, and then if one were carrying one's gloves instead of wearing them, what an outsider one would feel.—The Bystander.

Proper Pride.
Pride is one of the seven deadly sins; but it cannot be the pride of a mother in her children, for that is a compound of two cardinal virtues—self and love.—Dickens.

FOOD SOURING? STOMACH SICK, GASSY? BOWELS AREN'T ACTIVE! CASCARETS SURE

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases, that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness and sick headache, means your stomach is full of sour bile—your liver is torpid—your bowels constipated. It isn't your stomach's fault—it isn't indigestion—it's biliousness and constipation.

Try Cascarets; they immediately sweeten the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret tonight straightens you out by morning.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Nov. 23, 1872.—Brief items: The horse disease is still progressing. Horses attacked are beginning to recover. Frank Strunk walked in from his rural residence for the first time in ten years, this morning. He has eighteen horses, but they are all under treatment for epizootic. Webb & Hall's thermometer, which has been the public weather gauge for so many years, was stolen last night.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher
Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams
BY WALT MASON

The long campaign is over, and on Salt River's shore we stand and watch the boats of those who tried to save this country from its grave, and only lost their goats. The river's cold and dark; the boatmen in their bark don't smile or sing or joke; they do not care a whoop what country's in the soup, what government goes broke. They sadly guide their ship the while their teardrops drip into the briny food; the captain, bos'n, mate, have got their grouch on straight, the vessel's name is Mud. The sailors in the hold just stand around and scold and curse their blighted lives; their hope, they murmur, ends because their faithless friends got after them with knives. Ah, dismal is the scene! The old ship's mast career and shake each spar and yard; and from the haunted shore the sailors hear the roar of rap-back and canard. The woods along the beach re-echo to the screech of elephant and moose; the donkey stands and brays for perished yesterday, and mutters: "What's the use!" Oh, sad old ship and gray, go on your weary way, with all your weeping men! Your voyage is in vain; when there's a new campaign they'll bring you back again! Once more they'll want to save the nation from the grave and help the People's cause. The schooner seems to know her timbers groan in woe, she wallows, tacks and yaws!

THE DAILY NOVELETTE

Orchids.
"Come at 8," said Gertrude MeSwat's mellifluous voice over the telephone, "and I'll go with you." With happy smiles wrenching practically all his features, Joseph Wilson Jerome rushed from the telephone to a ticket speculator and bought two tickets for a regular two-dollar show at $33.50 apiece, because the speculator was a friend of his. Still rushing, he ordered the florist to send around eight dollars' worth of orchids and then, without leaving off rushing, engaged a new-painted taxi and ordered the chauffeur to rush to Gertrude's home.

"She's out," said the maid, "she went to a wedding, and she said for you to wait."
He waited three hours, though he detested waiters, and then she came. "Whose wedding was it?" he asked casually.
"Mine," she answered simply.
Even at that he wasn't really angry until he read in the papers next day how the richest thing at the wedding was the bride's bunch of orchids, which must have cost at least eighteen dollars.

Courage Makes Success.
Many a man has dried up in a little wayside opportunity, merely because he lacked the courage to acknowledge to himself that his judgment had landed him in the wrong spot. Fortune disdains mere ability—brain is nothing without bravery. The man who can be thrashed by a sneer has no right to be defeated.—Herbert Kaufman.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

Some trouble with ill-health or loss of money threatens you. Illness caused by intemperance in any way doubles all trouble.
Those born today will have ability and will be fond of praise, and inclined to be gloomy and pessimistic if they fail to get it. They learn quickly and it will be better for them to understand the truth at first, rather than get a false start through the mistaken kindness of friends.

IF TOMORROW IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

If to employ you are in danger of losing your position. It may be greatly to your advantage though, and with your natural determination should not cause you much sorrow. Waste not even a moment regret or in getting even with enemies, as you will only entangle yourself more.
Those born Sunday will be brilliant and capable but will naturally lack the patience necessary to success. They will learn much from books and will have the faculty of applying this knowledge to their own lives.

No Chance to Hold a Goat-Getting.
Some time ago a Mexican stepped into a Herington grocery store and was very wrathful when he discovered that some other Mexican had been getting groceries charged to him, relates the Herington Sun. "Why don't you get his goat?" suggested the grocer. "He got no goat," replied the Mexican. "He not even got a 4-c."

IT'S RISKY

IT'S A BIG RISK to hold an auction sale unless it is well advertised. You put up $2000 worth of property for sale; maybe it will bring $2000; maybe $1500; maybe less.
It's up to you.
It all depends upon how well you advertise it. One that is thoroughly advertised cannot help but be a success. Almost every sale that is advertised in the Gazette brings more than the proprietor expected.
You can save a few dollars by trying to get along with a few bills or running a small ad in a paper with little circulation, but how about results? Will you find that you have saved anything when you count your money at the close of the sale?
Dare you take chances on $2000 worth of property to save a few dollars at the outset?

Flagged Train With Shirt.
Tearing his shirt from his back an Ohio man flagged a train and saved it from a wreck, but H. T. Alston, Raleigh, N. C., once prevented a wreck with Electric Bitters. "I was in a terrible plight when I began to use them," he writes, "my stomach, head, back and kidneys were all badly affected and my liver was in bad condition, but four bottles of Electric Bitters made me feel like a new man." A trial will convince you of their matchless merit for any stomach, liver or kidney trouble. Price, 50 cents at People's Drug Co.

WOMEN, AVOID OPERATIONS

Many Unsuccessful — And Worse Suffering Often Follows. Mrs. Rock's Case A Warning.

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will show how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when often it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for several months without much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. ORVILLE ROCK, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has restored the health of thousands of suffering women. Why don't you try it?

HIS RISE TO POWER

By Henry Russell Miller,
Author of
"The Man Higher Up"

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

PROLOGUE.

Reader, here is a live, gripping, absorbing romance of politics—not the politics of a decade ago, but the politics of today. A young American of good fighting blood and hard, fixed ideals sets out to smash the political machine of his state without compromise with evil. The great moment of his life comes when he must sacrifice his clean hands or ruin the father of the girl he loves. The creative genius and large power of the author are even more notable than in "The Man Higher Up," Mr. Miller's preceding novel.

CHAPTER I.

Mists of the Morning.
It was twilight still in the valley, but over the hills to the east the sky was whitening. A young man sitting by his window turned to see the birth of another day. Throughout the night he had been staring at a vision. But weariness had set no mark upon him. His vision he did not understand, save that for him it spelled opportunity—a chance to put into a drifting, rather ordinary existence, purposeful action; to stretch his muscles, rack his brain and tear his soul in the struggle that is the life of man.

He caught up a rough towel and, stealing quietly out of the house, walked rapidly down the street. When the straggling town lay behind him he broke into a slow trot. At a place where many feet had worn a path across a clover meadow he turned from the road. The path ended at a clump of bushes on the river bank.

Hastily undressing, he plunged into the green depths, from which June had not quite taken the chill of spring. His little, strong body responded to the shock. The nerves, harried by the long night watch, relaxed. He shouted lustily. For a few minutes he swam vigorously. Then, reaching the shore, he took the towel and rubbed himself into a glow. He tingled with a sense of well being.

When he was dressed again, refreshed and eager for his day, he took the path back to the highway. The sun was climbing over the hills. He stopped and watched it while it swung clear in the sky, gleaming a fiery red through the mists of the valley. The glory of the morning was complete.

He was about to resume his tramp homeward when he beheld a strange procession advancing along the road, a young woman leading a limping horse. As she came nearer he chuckled aloud. The handsome pigskin saddle, the ivory handled crop, the modish riding suit and boots were not the equipment with which young ladies of New Chelsea were wont to ride.

She heard him and looked up coldly. The chuckle died instantly. "Good morning," he said. "What's the matter with your horse? Can I help you?"

She stopped. "He has picked up a stone," she answered, "and I can't get it out. If you will be so good—"

He vaulted lightly over the fence that bounded the meadow and removed the offending stone.

"Thank you," the young woman said. "You're quite welcome," he answered. "I'm always glad to help beauty in distress. He is a beautiful animal, isn't he?" he added hastily.

"Are you chaffing me?" she asked coldly.

He repressed a smile. "By no means. Better not ride him for a little bit, until we see how he walks. You ride early," he ventured.

"No earlier than you—swim," she replied briefly, glancing at his wet hair and towel. He at once became unconfortably conscious of his latter unkempt appearance.

"Are you staying in New Chelsea?"

"Yes."

"Shall you stay long?"

"Are you in the habit of cross examining strangers on the road?" she inquired feignedly.

He reddened. "I beg your pardon," he said and slackened his pace to let her drive ahead.

"I think I'll ride now," she said. "If you will help me up, Crusader has stopped limping."

He held out his hand, she placed a foot in it and was lifted to the saddle. She murmured her thanks. But although she gathered in the reins, she did not start away. For a moment she sat looking at the hills, apparently oblivious of the young man's presence.

He wondered who she was and ventured again. "Why do you call him Crusader?"

She looked down at him. "Another question? You are incorrigible."

"I beg your pardon," he said again stolidly and marched up the road.

"I have named him that," she called after him; "because he has plenty of fire and spirit, but at critical times seems to lack common sense." She laughed, a free, musical laugh that somehow recalled the blood to his cheeks. He made no reply.

She watched him as he swung along, frankly admiring the tall, cleanly built figure whose lines the loose coat he wore did not conceal. She remembered the end of the big game eight years before, when a laughing, mud stained young athlete tore himself away from his idolatrous companions to lay his triumph at the feet of the day's sweetheart. She remembered also, with a smile, the stabbing childish jealousy with which a freckle faced, short skirted girl had witnessed his devotion.

"And you're still here, buried alive in this out of the way corner of the world," she said softly. "Oh, John Dunmeade! John Dunmeade!"

Suddenly she touched her horse with the crop. He bounded forward and clattered along until the young man was overtaken. She pulled Crusader down to a walk, at which the young man looked up astonished. Curious as to her identity, but fearing another reproach, he cautiously refrained from further speech.

They went along in silence until they reached a point where the undulating road rose to command a view of the valley to the south and the town to the north. She reined in her horse.

"What a pity one can't find words for such a morning! And the wonder of it is that it has recurred, we don't know how many millions of times, always glorious."

"It makes one feel a bit reverent," she said. "It makes one feel as helpless as—"

She paused for lack of a comparison.

"As helpless as some chick will soon feel, unless the farmer's dog scares off that hawk!" he completed the sentence for her, pointing. Over a barnyard in the valley the big bird was soaring in narrowing, lowering circles. From beneath a flock faintly the cries of frightened fowls. Suddenly the hawk swooped low to the earth. Scarcely pausing, it soared aloft once more, leaving panic in the barnyard and one chick the less.

The young woman laughed. "There's an illustration of one fundamental law."

"The supremacy of the strong? That's an old theory, I know. A very pretty one from the point of view of the hawk. But how about the chick?" "Oh, it one is born a chick"—She concluded the sentence with a shrug.

Suddenly, With a Laugh, She Was Gone Amid a Clatter of Hoofs.

of her shoulders. "Strength is its own law. Hasn't the world always been conquered and ruled by its strong?"

"I'm afraid that is true," he said soberly.

"Afraid! I should think you would be glad, since I have it from the New Chelsea Globe—you are a strong man."

He looked his astonishment. "You know who I am?"

"Of course! Did you think, Mr. Dunmeade," she laughed—"did you think your charms outweighed the conventions? I am not a barbarian in the habit of philosophizing with strange young men on the road before 7 o'clock in the morning."

"What did you read in the Globe?"

"The vanity of men! I read, Mr. Dunmeade will undoubtedly make a strong candidate. The entire county wants him. It will have him." It reads like a patent medicine advertisement, doesn't it? How does it feel to be wanted by an entire county, Mr. Dunmeade?"

"It is," he confessed, "rather pleasant—if true. Who are you?"

And suddenly, with a laugh, she was gone, amid a clatter of hoofs.

Alone he addressed the morning.

"She said I am strong. I wonder, am I strong—strong enough?" And, searching his soul for the answer, he heard no negative.

This chronicle, we neglected to state, begins at the beginning of the end of an epoch. The epoch has been variously styled a golden age, a period of prosperity, an era of expansion. It was all of that—to a few. For others, though they did not see it, it was a recession, a truce in the struggle, old as life itself, between the many and the strong.

William Murchell was a distinguished member of a class whose climbing proclivities are not subdued by the incident of a lowly start. He was born in the obscure hill town of New Chelsea soon after Andrew Jackson and his contemporaries promulgated and illustrated the immortal doctrine, "To the victor belong the spoils." In the fashion made popular by Abraham Lincoln and other great men he secured an education and on the day he attained his majority was admitted to the practice of law in Benton county. About the same time he entered the broader profession of politics, being then a lukewarm Whig.

His military services are perhaps best dismissed with the mention of a certain gold medal struck in his honor, by special act of congress, for gallant conduct on the field of battle. The indvidious have made much of this decoration. However, it probably required a finer courage to resign from the colony of his home guard regiment on the eve of Gettysburg—this indeed was the fact—to accept the less exposed office of aid to the governor at the capital than to face the hail of rebel bullets. There are many ways of expressing one's patriotism. Later he served his country as probationary for Benton county. Afterward he passed through many gradations of political preferment, as representative in the general assembly of his state, as state senator, as state treasurer and finally as United States senator, which exalted office he held until—but we anticipate our history. He became in addition leader of his party organization; an euphemism employed by those who objected to the term "boss."

William Murchell's creed was that of a respectable but practical man. He was a teetotaler and a Presbyterian elder and believed in the doctrine of foreordination and in a literal scriptural hell for those not numbered among the elect. He believed devoutly in the avowed and tacit principles of his party, although he was not bigoted and would on occasion take a secret hand in the affairs of the opposition. He had more than once read out of the party foolhardy young men who ventured to oppose his leadership.

He lived during at least two months of every year in the town of his birth, either in the square, white frame house on Maple street or at the farm, three miles west, which he let "on shares." New Chelsea was a quaint, old fashioned town lying at the head of the Weehawke valley, quite content with its population of 5,000 and with the honor of being the county seat, which Murchell's influence had prevented from being moved to Plumville, that thriving little factory city fifteen miles away.

Down Main street one fine June afternoon he was walking with that air of abstraction which sits so well on the great.

"He has big possibilities." Unconsciously the senator spoke aloud.

His companion seemed to understand the reference. "He's all right," he answered. State Senator Jim Sheehan was a big, fat gentleman with furrowed, twinkling eyes, a modicum of coarse good looks and a rolling, cock sure gait, bred of no misfortune. He was a son of power. Fifteen years before he had gone to Plumville to work in the mills, an untaught, unlettered Irishman, who could tell a good story, hold unlimited quantities of liquor and was not unwilling to work when money could not be had otherwise.

Had No Time.

"Why doesn't Jabez Jones go to work and get prosperous?" "Because," replied the loyal friend, "he's a patriot who never neglects his duty as a citizen. He has been a member of the petit jury three times, a member of the grand jury twice, a delegate to four conventions and has gone unresisting to the legislature frequently. What time has he to himself?"

HONEY BEES TAKE PLACE OF WHISKERS

Jay Smith and his honey bees beard.

To prove his statement that "bees won't sting you if you are not afraid of them and do not try to molest them," Jay Smith, of Vincennes, Ind., posed for a picture the other day with bees swarming over his face and breast in the form of a long beard. Mr. Smith is a bee fancier and apparently they like him as well as he does them. He has several hives of them and when he goes to gather honey he seldom wears any mask or other protection.

The easy Resinol way to get rid of pimples

JUST bathe your face for several minutes morning and night with hot water and plenty of Resinol Soap. Finish with a dash of cold water to close the pores. This simple treatment will almost always get rid of pimples and blackheads, quickly and completely. In severe or stubborn cases, apply a little Resinol Ointment, allowing it to remain on a few minutes before bathing with Resinol Soap. The healing, antiseptic balsams in Resinol Soap and Ointment soothe and cleanse every irritated pore, leaving the complexion clear and velvety.

Resinol Soap and Ointment stop itching instantly and speedily heal eczema and other skin humors, dandruff, chapped hands, sores, boils, burns, wounds and piles.

Philadelphia, July 9, 1912: "Over a year ago my face broke out all over with pimples which were so unsightly that I was ashamed to go any place in company. I tried many different remedies, but they continued to get worse till I sent for samples of Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment in March. From the day I started using Resinol the pimples commenced to disappear. After using one cake of Resinol Soap and one and a half jars of Resinol Ointment I was entirely cured." (Signed) Joseph Phillips, 1305 McKean St.

Trial free: Resinol Soap and Ointment (50c and $1) are recommended and sold by druggists everywhere. For sample of each, write to Dept. 12-B, Resinol Chem. Co., Baltimore, Md.

Linens That Are Linens

Table Linens, the finest imported grades. Absolute security and satisfaction are yours when buying linens here, because there is never the disappointment that comes when cotton baseness is revealed at the laundering time. The linens we sell improve in the washing. Priced too, better in your favor than elsewhere.

Fine Linens From Irish and Scotch Looms

There's lustre and life in these linens—real flax from Irish and Scotch looms, honest textures, staunch and sturdy weights—yet the price of cotton will buy any of them here, because we sell our merchandise at 33 1/3 below retail prices in other stores — no need of our arguing early buying.
